Council Opens Way for City To Take Arterial Route Plan

Approval Is General by Aldermen

Makes Possible Action at Present Session of Legislature; Letters Submitted

Common Council action last night opened the way for the city to take later advantage of a state-drafted arterial route plan if it decides upon the proposal in whole or part.

A unanimous council vote approved the plan in general, but suggested changes from various sources indicated further consideration before final action is taken on any one phase of the project.

The aldermen's action last night, however, makes required state action on the proposal possible at the present session of the Legislature in Albany.

An audience of 20 persons offered no opposition, and the only objection submitted by letter was from the advisory board of the First Baptist Church on Albany avenue.

Letters, resolutions and reports in favor of the project were from the city planning board, business men's associations, the Kingston Chamber of Commerce, the Ulster County Real Estate Board, and Ulster County Chapter, Civil Service Employes Association.

Projects Suggested

A detailed report by the planning board suggested grade separation projects at points where the thruway spur off Broadway to Route 28 would cross the mountain branch of the New York Central railroad, and proposed elimination of the plan to build a new approach on the city side of the Rondout creek bridge.

Other suggestions were made in the planning board's long report which indicated that its members felt generally that the city would gain many advantages through adoption of some form of an arterial route plan.

Mayor Frederick H. Stang's letter to the council asking approval, stressed that "by your approval of the plan in general, you are definitely not approving any detailed plan." The mayor was in the small audience at the meeting.

Among Changes Suggested

Among suggested changes was one asking for the adding of Hurley avenue (Route 209) and Washington avenue in the viaduct area to the city's arterial route system. A resolution by Aldermen James K. Ryan, 10th Ward, and Edwin F. Radel, Third Ward, sug-

President Confident Economy Will Adjust; Sticks to Charter

Eisenhower Says Administration Holds Prosperity One of Nation's Masses

Washington, Feb. 3 (AP)—President Eisenhower said today he believes the United States is going through a period of economic adjustment but he is confident everything will turn out all right.

A readjustment has always followed in the wake of a defense emergency, the President told a news conference.

His administration, he added, believes the prosperity of a country lies in the prosperity of its masses, not in the wealth of any small groups.

His statement followed an expression of opinion by Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey yesterday that the country is undergoing a "rolling readjustment" which is nothing to be disturbed about.

In response to a question, Eisenhower said he is sticking by his decision that it will not be wise to try to raise the minimum wage of 75 cents an hour at this time of economic transition.

Asks for Comment

Ray Scherer of the National Broadcasting Co. asked for comment on what Scherer described as a feeling in some quarters that it is practically un-American to say there is a recession going on.

Eisenhower laughed and then said this is a free country and people are entitled to use whatever language they like.

As for himself, Eisenhower said, he supposes we have receded from something since not everything is at its peak.

In a conference covering a wide range of subjects, Eisenhower also:

1. Declared emphatically that he will not compromise one bit—one single word— on the Bricker treaty for power amendment in any way which would alter the traditional balance of power between the three branches of government. He said he still is willing to endorse any compromise proposal designed to make it clear that no treaty shall contravene the constitution.

Instructs Aides

2. Announced that he has instructed aides to make a thorough study to determine whether any breakdown can be made public showing how many persons of doubtful loyalty were among the 2,200 let out by the administration as security risks since Eisenhower took office.

3. Asserted he deplores any spread of hysterical fear in connection with America's possession of atomic weapons. Big talk and bombastic statements are not the way to deal with the situation, the President said, adding that a calm attitude is the better course.

4. Said that if the people of Indochina are determined they want to be free, they probably will be in the long run. If they don't have such determination, the President declared, the outcome of the struggle against Communists there may well go the other way.

Beeson Up to Senate

5. Put it squarely up to the Senate to decide whether Albert C. Beeson, his controversial choice for a post on the National Labor Relations Board, is qualified for the job. Eisenhower said the administration searched for a good man, believed at the time it was selecting a good man, and that

Schifano Case Is To Start Feb. 8 In County Court

Senator Gittleson Requests Postponement and Promises Action Monday

Disposition of the Samuel Schifano manslaughter case has been set down for next Monday at 2 o'clock in County court. At that time the case will "definitely be disposed of," Senator Harry Gittleson told County Judge John M. Cashin today when he requested the case be postponed until next week.

The Schifano case had been placed at the head of the February criminal calendar at the last term of court when a postponment was granted. It was moved Monday for trial at the opening of court today.

Senator Gittleson of New York city, who with Charles H. Gaffney, appears for the defendant requested a further postponment and promised disposition next Monday.

Charged With Death

Motions Offered To Pay Governor $50,000 Next Year

Little Opposition Expected in Legislature; $20,000 for Second Man Also Proposed

Albany, Feb. 3 (AP)—If money is the object for Gov. Dewey, he faces a temptation today to seek a fourth term: The legislature is likely to double the governor's salary.

The financial leaders of the Senate and Assembly yesterday introduced twin resolutions to raise the governor's pay to $50,000 a year and the lieutenant governor's to $20,000 — double the present rates.

The pay raises would go into effect Jan. 1, 1955, for the winners of next fall's general election.

Sponsored by Austin Erwin, Geneseo Republican and chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, and William H. MacKenzie, Allegany county Republican and chairman of the Assembly Ways and Means Committee, the proposal appears to face little opposition.

Authorized by Voters

Pay raises for the state's two top officials were authorized by the voters last fall, when, by a 2-1 margin, they approved a constitutional amendment permitting the legislature to fix the salaries of the governor and lieutenant governor, up to limits of $50,000 and $20,000 a year.

Dewey is keeping his own counsel on whether he will run for governor again. But the state is sure to have a new lieutenant

Molotov Opens Raps Upon U.S., Britain

Scene Changes and Talks Go On

Fear Held Pope May Have Cancer

Vatican Newspaper Says Pontiff Improves; Call for Medico Denied

Vatican City, Feb. 3 (AP)—The Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano, in evident effort to allay growing concern over the health of Pope Pius XII said today that "the state of the supreme pontiff, thanks to God, continues to improve."

The newspaper also described as "absolutely unfounded" reports in the Italian press that an English specialist who attended the late King George VI of Britain had been called for consultation.

This report, printed in both Il Messaggero and Il Tempo of Rome, conservative newspapers, had heightened worry that the pontiff may be suffering from cancer.

King George died of a thrombosis in 1952 after he had been operated upon for cancer of the lung.

'Conjectures Made'

The Vatican newspaper, in its lengthiest comment upon the Pope's condition since he was forced to cancel a big general audience a week ago, said during the past two days a part of the press had made "conjectures that were arbitrary and inconsistent with the news."

"Bits of news," it said, "have been gathered here and there and attributed to 'authoritative sources' with the aim of validating that which was only the fruit of mere fantasy."

A Vatican press office bulletin yesterday said medical examinations with "happily negative results" had established that the Pope's disturbance is of "a gastric nature, provoked by non-adequate functioning of the neurodigestive system."

Is 'Nervous Indigestion'

As described in that bulletin, the ailment is nervous indigestion. Hiccuping from time to time disturbs the Pope's sleep. Four German Nuns watch over him in his private Vatican palare apartment.

The Messaggero and Tempo accounts said the Pope had been placed on a liquid diet. They said he suffers stomach pains that re-

Calls Nations Cause of Europe's Army Moscow Seems to Dread

Berlin, Feb. 3 (AP)—A new Soviet attack on the west's plans for a European army embroiled the Big Four conference today in another session of words.

Russia's V. M. Molotov, opening the foreign ministers' ninth meeting in Berlin, loosed a tirade at the west for espousing a Germany that would be a partner in a European Army"—an army Moscow appears to dread even though it would be purely defensive in character.

This was Molotov's day to make another try at imposing the Soviet idea of a united Germany, an effort he must know by now is useless. He had contrived a plan for "free elections" and presumably laid it before the conference, without much hope of it accomplish-

Johnston Hurt Badly in South

Kingston Man Is Thrown Through Windshield; Hip Is Crushed

Fred J. Johnston of 63 Main street was very seriously injured last Saturday while en route to Florida when the new station wagon in which he, his sister, Miss Dorothy M. Johnston and his mother, Mrs. Eva Johnston were passengers, was wrecked near Brunswick, Georgia. Johnston suffered a crushed hip and serious head and face injuries when he was thrown through the windshield. He is in City Hospital, Brunswick, Georgia, and is expected to be in the hospital at least six weeks.

Miss Johnston and Mrs. Johnston were taken to the hospital but released the following day after treatment.

The accident happened Saturday afternoon about 4 o'clock when a north bound car is reported to have crossed the road and ran head-on into the Johnston car. They were en route to Key West.

Downtown Bank Prospects Bright, Says Senator Wicks

Prospects for a bank downtown are encouraging, according to Senator Arthur H. Wicks, who told The Freeman he's supporting a bill in the State Legislature to permit the restoration of commercial banking service to the people in the area.

Wicks is collaborating with Senator Pliny Williamson of Westchester county, who has introduced an act to amend the state banking law to permit the establishment of branch banks and trust companies in cities of less than 30,000.

Williamson has a situation in his territory similar to the one here, where business men are without the services of a bank.

If the bill is enacted into law, Wicks said, it will permit establishment of a branch bank downtown, subject to the approval of the state superintendent of banks.

Tallamy Says Democrats Using Thruway for Politics

Albany, Feb. 3 (AP)—A Democratic attack on the work of the State Thruway Authority is a "vicious distortion of the facts for political purposes," the authority chairman says.

Bertram D. Tallamy replied last night to Democratic charges that the authority's fourth annual report revealed "laxity, gross inefficiency, carelessness and downright negligence."

Sen. Francis J. Mahoney and Assemblyman Eugene F. Bannigan, minority leaders, contended in a statement that the expressway was being developed largely through guesswork.

Tallamy replied that "each foot of the project was planned with painstaking care by the finest engineering talent, and any suggestion that guesswork entered into the design, planning or construction of the facility is sheer falsehood."

The authority, in its report to the Legislature and Gov. Dewey, said Monday night that it would need more money to complete the superhighway. And Tallamy, addressing the State Society of Newspaper Editors in Buffalo, said the 500 million dollars the authority had been authorized to borrow would fall short of financing the 427-mile main route from New York to Buffalo.

Tallamy said any of his statements on the lack of detailed plans were "obviously in connection with the original cost estimate before funds were available for an accurate mile-by-mile survey."

"The minority leaders have twisted this in a rank political effort to cast doubt on the integrity of the administration and of the Thruway Authority," Tallamy said.

"We are building the New York State Thruway at a cost per mile that is comparable, or lower than, other similar expressways," he said. "We are building it faster than other similar expressways have been built. These are facts, not irresponsible statements inspired by politics."

Tallamy said the forces "these leaders represent opposed the original thruway legislation and have sought in every way possible to obstruct our work."

In their statement, the Democratic leaders said the original estimate of the thruway cost was 250 million and that "the state had the funds to construct it." "The cost jumped by leaps and bounds: 350 million, 400 million,

Medicos Ponder Case of Boy Reared by Animals in India

New Delhi, India, Feb. 3 (AP)—A gaunt, snarling lad dubbed the "Wolf Boy" is providing medical authorities in Lucknow the twin problems of keeping him alive and determining his background.

The boy walks on all fours, wolfs down raw meat and laps water like an animal. Doctors say he is 9 years old. With hair long and matted, he was found in a railway freight car Jan. 17. Though he is definitely a human, doctors conjecture that he was reared by animals.

The boy was removed to the Balrampur Hospital in Lucknow, in north central India, where symptoms of a serious circulatory ailment were noted.

Much against his will, he is being fed cooked meat, milk, porridge, fruit juices and pancakes as well as the raw meat he likes. Despite more than two weeks of hospital care, however, he still lies huddled weakly in his bed, giving an occasional snarl and trying to bite attendants. He cringes from light. He shows little interest in things until raw meat is produced. This he devours avidly.

As the first step toward mental development, the doctors have given him the name Ramu.

The hospital superintendent, Dr. D. N. Sharma, said massage will be used in an effort to restore the boy to normal human shape.

"He has serious contracture of the muscles of the limbs and

200 Pilgrims Are Crushed in India

At Least 1,000 Are Hurt When Millions Dash Into Holy Waters

New Delhi, India, Feb. 3 (AP)—Scores of Hindus were trampled to death today in a frenzied stampede of religious bathers into the holy waters at the joining of the Ganges and Jumna rivers, near Allahabad.

Unofficial estimates of the death toll ranged from 200 to 1,000. Unconfirmed reports said at least 1,000 were injured.

Althought official sources at Allahabad would give no casualty figures and refused any comment on the reported tragedy, eyewitness accounts said 200 square yards along the sandy banks of the sacred Ganges were strewn with bodies after police cleared away the millions of panic stricken bathers at the great Kumbh Mela Festival—one of the holiest in the Hindu religion.

Observing Belief

The vast throng of Pilgrims, estimated at three million strong, had gathered at the rivers' confluence in eastern India—350 miles south of New Delhi—in observance of the Orthodox Hindu belief that bathing there during the Kumbh Mela spares them the pangs of rebirth into a reincarnation.

Hindu astrologers had proclaimed today's ceremony as a 12th Kumbh Mela, the most important religious bathing festival in 144 years.

President Says '52 Blast First of Kind in History

Washington, Feb. 3 (AP)—President Eisenhower says the huge 1952 atomic blast in the Pacific was "the first full scale thermonuclear explosion in history... The first step in the hydrogen weapon program of the United States."

His statement to Congress yesterday was the first official claim that the United States got the jump on Russia with a full-scale hydrogen explosion. Moscow, announcing a hydrogen explosion last summer, said the United States no longer had a monopoly in the field.

Unofficial letters from the Eniwetok test site in the fall of 1952 described the big blast as wiping out an island.

"At that time," Eisenhower said, "It represented the farthest advance of research and development in nuclear weapons. This explosion, which dwarfed the atomic explosions of World War 2, was but a stage in the steady improvement of our nuclear weapons.

"These improvements will be continued—in the hope that our weapons will deter war, and in the determination that we shall be able to retaliate immediately, with crushing force, if war should come."

Secretary of Defense Wilson, meanwhile, told a news conference he does not regard Russian talk of its atomic strength as just bluff, and he added: "I personally wish we could quit rattling the atomic bomb."

American Says Spy Tells Secrets of Soviet's Agents

Tokyo, Feb. 3 (AP)—A trustworthy American military source said today a Russian diplomat-spy reported missing last week is revealing secrets of a Red spy ring in Japan to U. S. intelligence agents at Okinawa.

The source, who cannot be identified, said inside secrets from the "highly efficient agent" are helping crack the spy ring.

The diplomat, Yuri Alexandrovich Rastovorov, apparently fled in terror from the defunct Russian mission in Tokyo, the source said, after helping "set up a spy network that has already penetrated some of the highest levels of the Japanese government."

"Rastovorov left out of fear of his life," the source said. "The claim of the Russian mission that he was kidnaped by the Americans is ridiculous."

Rastorov disappeared Jan. 24. The Soviet mission first reported him missing and later accused the United States of kidnaping him.

However, the American source said Rastovorov fled after being ordered back to Moscow because he apparently was found "softening" toward Americans.

American intelligence agents presumably were questioning him about Soviet espionage activities at American bases in Japan.

The source said a Russian intelligence agent accompanying a Russian ice-skating team here in

Council Opens Way for City To Take Arterial Route Plan

President Confident Economy Will Adjust; Sticks to Charter

Approval Is General by Aldermen

Makes Possible Action at Present Session of Legislature; Letters Submitted

Common Council action last night opened the way for the city to take later advantage of a state-drafted arterial route plan if it decides upon the proposal in whole or part.

A unanimous council vote approved the plan in general, but suggested changes from various sources indicated further consideration before final action is taken on any one phase of the project.

The aldermen's action last night, however, makes required state action on the proposal possible at the present session of the Legislature in Albany.

An audience of 20 persons offered no opposition, and the only objection submitted by letter was from the advisory board of the First Baptist Church on Albany avenue.

Letters, resolutions and reports in favor of the project were from the city planning board, business men's associations, the Kingston Chamber of Commerce, the Ulster County Real Estate Board, and Ulster County Chapter, Civil Service Employes Association.

Projects Suggested

A detailed report by the planning board suggested grade separation projects at points where the thruway spur off Broadway to Route 28 would cross the mountain branch of the New York Central railroad, and proposed elimination of the plan to build a new approach on the city side of the Rondout creek bridge.

Among Changes Suggested

Among suggested changes was one asking for the adding of Hurley avenue (Route 209) and Washington avenue in the viaduct area to the city's arterial route system. A resolution by Aldermen James K. Ryan, 10th Ward, and Edwin F. Radel, Third Ward, sug-

Asks for Comment

Ray Scherer of the National Broadcasting Co. asked for comment on what Scherer described as a feeling in some quarters that it is practically un-American to say there is a recession going on.

Eisenhower laughed and then said this is a free country and people are entitled to use whatever language they like.

As for himself, Eisenhower said, he supposes we have receded from something since not everything is at its peak.

In a conference covering a wide range of subjects, Eisenhower also:

1. Declared emphatically that he will not compromise one bit—one single word— on the Bricker treaty for power amendment in any way which would alter the traditional balance of power between the three branches of government. He said he still is willing to endorse any compromise proposal designed to make it clear that no treaty shall contravene the constitution.

Instructs Aides

2. Announced that he has instructed aides to make a thorough study to determine whether any breakdown can be made public showing how many persons of doubtful loyalty were among the 2,200 let out by the administration as security risks since Eisenhower took office.

3. Asserted he deplores any spread of hysterical fear in connection with America's possession of atomic weapons. Big talk and bombastic statements are not the way to deal with the situation, the President said, adding that a calm attitude is the better course.

4. Said that if the people of Indochina are determined they want to be free, they probably will be in the long run. If they don't have such determination, the President declared, the outcome of the struggle against Communists there may well go the other way.

Beeson Up to Senate

5. Put it squarely up to the Senate to decide whether Albert C. Beeson, his controversial choice for a post on the National Labor Relations Board, is qualified for the job. Eisenhower said the administration searched for a good man, believed at the time it was selecting a good man, and that

Tallamy Says Democrats Using Thruway for Politics

Albany, Feb. 3 (AP)—A Democratic attack on the work of the State Thruway Authority is a "vicious distortion of the facts for political purposes," the authority chairman says.

Bertram D. Tallamy replied last night to Democratic charges that the authority's fourth annual report revealed "laxity, gross inefficiency, carelessness and downright negligence."

Sen. Francis J. Mahoney and Assemblyman Eugene F. Bannigan, minority leaders, contended in a statement that the expressway was being developed largely through guesswork.

Tallamy replied that "each foot of the project was planned with painstaking care by the finest engineering talent, and any suggestion that guesswork entered into the design, planning or construction of the facility is sheer falsehood."

The authority, in its report to the Legislature and Gov. Dewey, said Monday night that it would need more money to complete the superhighway. And Tallamy, addressing the State Society of Newspaper Editors in Buffalo, said the 500 million dollars the authority had been authorized to borrow would fall short of financing the 427-mile main route from New York to Buffalo.

Tallamy said any of his statements on the lack of detailed plans were "obviously in connection with the original cost estimate before funds were available for an accurate mile-by-mile survey."

"The minority leaders have twisted this in a rank political effort to cast doubt on the integrity of the administration and of the Thruway Authority," Tallamy said.

"We are building the New York State Thruway at a cost per mile that is comparable, or lower than, other similar expressways," he said. "We are building it faster than other similar expressways have been built. These are facts, not irresponsible statements inspired by politics."

Tallamy said the forces "these leaders represent opposed the original thruway legislation and have sought in every way possible to obstruct our work."

In their statement, the Democratic leaders said the original estimate of the thruway cost was 250 million and that "the state had the funds to construct it." "The cost jumped by leaps and bounds: 350 million, 400 million,

American Says Spy Tells Secrets of Soviet's Agents

Tokyo, Feb. 3 (AP)—A trustworthy American military source said today a Russian diplomat-spy reported missing last week is revealing secrets of a Red spy ring in Japan to U. S. intelligence agents at Okinawa.

The source, who cannot be identified, said inside secrets from the "highly efficient agent" are helping crack the spy ring.

The diplomat, Yuri Alexandrovich Rastovorov, apparently fled in terror from the defunct Russian mission in Tokyo, the source said, after helping "set up a spy network that has already penetrated some of the highest levels of the Japanese government."

"Rastovorov left out of fear of his life," the source said. "The claim of the Russian mission that he was kidnaped by the Americans is ridiculous."

Rastorov disappeared Jan. 24. The Soviet mission first reported him missing and later accused the United States of kidnaping him.

However, the American source said Rastovorov fled after being ordered back to Moscow because he apparently was found "softening" toward Americans.

American intelligence agents presumably were questioning him about Soviet espionage activities at American bases in Japan.

The source said a Russian intelligence agent accompanying a Russian ice-skating team here in

Medicos Ponder Case of Boy Reared by Animals in India

New Delhi, India, Feb. 3 (AP)—A gaunt, snarling lad dubbed the "Wolf Boy" is providing medical authorities in Lucknow the twin problems of keeping him alive and determining his background.

The boy walks on all fours, wolfs down raw meat and laps water like an animal. Doctors say he is 9 years old. With hair long and matted, he was found in a railway freight car Jan. 17. Though he is definitely a human, doctors conjecture that he was reared by animals.

The boy was removed to the Balrampur Hospital in Lucknow, in north central India, where symptoms of a serious circulatory ailment were noted.

Much against his will, he is being fed cooked meat, milk, porridge, fruit juices and pancakes as well as the raw meat he likes. Despite more than two weeks of hospital care, however, he still lies huddled weakly in his bed, giving an occasional snarl and trying to bite attendants. He cringes from light. He shows little interest in things until raw meat is produced. This he devours avidly.

As the first step toward mental development, the doctors have given him the name Ramu.

The hospital superintendent, Dr. D. N. Sharma, said massage will be used in an effort to restore the boy to normal human shape.

"He has serious contracture of the muscles of the limbs and

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By BILLY ROSE

Love Story in Mt. Kisco

One Sunday afternoon a few months ago, as I was driving to New York from Mt. Kisco where I live, I passed a funeral procession. As my car edged past a long line of shiny limousines, I noticed there was something strange about the order of the procession. Instead of the principal mourner's car following the hearse, as is the custom, it was in front of it.

I slowed down and peeked into the first car. Its sole occupant, aside from the chauffeur, was an elderly lady I had met at various times during my years in Mt. Kisco.

I forgot about this odd funeral until one day during the Christmas holidays when I drove into the village to buy a roll of film at Fox and Sutherland's, the general store. There at the book counter was the elderly lady I had seen in the limousine.

On the way out I stopped by to wish her a Merry Christmas, and then made bold enough to ask her to explain the unusual order of the cars in the procession.

"It was my husband's funeral," she said, "and if you are truly interested, I don't mind telling you why I was riding in front of the hearse. . . ."

Almost forty years ago, she told me, she had married the well-to-do brother of a college chum, and shortly after the honeymoon they had moved into a house her husband had purchased not far from Mt. Kisco.

As it turned out, their first few years together weren't particularly happy ones. Then they hit on a formula which made their union almost idyllic.

The formula was a simple one. Tell the truth. No matter how it hurts, hold nothing back.

At first, as might be expected, it was a difficult resolution to live up to, and on several occasions the unvarnished truth almost broke up their marriage. Later, however, as they developed full reliance and trust in each other, their bickerings ceased, and their dependence on each other became complete.

Their happiness lasted until last spring when her husband, now in his 60's, suddenly took to bed with a blood disease that modern medicine hasn't caught up with yet.

The doctors admitted that her husband's death was a matter of days, weeks at the most, and counseled her to spare him the pain of knowing the truth.

"I suppose," I ventured to interrupt, "you followed their advice."

The old lady smiled. "I never lied to my husband. He would have known it immediately if I had. Instead, I told him the truth, and it made him happy for the short time he had left."

"You told him he was going to die?" I said.

"He never asked me that question because death, in itself, never worried him. What did worry him were the lonely years I would face after he was gone."

"Then what did you tell him?"

"I told my husband not to worry about it," said my neighbor. "That I was certain I would precede him to the cemetery."

"Bong!" went the Cable Sniffer!

Maybe you've never seen an "electronic nose." But it plays a big part in making telephone service even more dependable.

You see, if moisture leaks through worn or damaged cable insulation, it can put hundreds of phones completely out of business. That could be bad!

But Bell scientists have found a way to detect even the smallest leak before it causes trouble. They call the gadget the "electronic nose." This "nose" rides along the cable, which has been previously filled with a harmless gas. When it sniffs the tiniest leak, it rings a bell. And workmen mark the spot for quick repair.

This is just one of the things we do to keep your service dependable. And the record is good. Today the average phone is in use six years without any interruption to service. New York Telephone Company.

Think It Through

By EDWARD F. HUTTON

There are labor unions and labor unions. And when the promoters of socialism—and communism—tell you big business hate labor unions, don't believe them. It isn't true.

Sometimes labor unions do rash and ill-considered things; sometimes they get tough when they should be conciliatory. Sometimes they encroach on the rights of business to operate freely. But in the main, unions are good for America and there are many who excel in behalf of their members and their society.

Mr. Hutton

Business realizes this more than most persons because labor is hired by business. Business realizes that employes buy the products of free enterprise and that every man who works for somebody else is—first of all—an American entitled to the guarantees of the Bill of Rights.

Remember this the next time someone tells you the free enterprise system is a monster, that the government which favors free enterprise is decadent. Remember that when the advantages—so-called—of socialism are extolled. Because socialism, total socialism, has been tried. They call it communism in Russia. And there nobody can belong to a labor union and bargain with his employer.

You can't bargain with communism.

Secor Is Chosen For Bell Position

Charles C. Secor, formerly of this city, has been named eastern division plant superintendent by the New Jersey Bell Telephone Company.

Secor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Secor of 178 TenBroeck avenue, graduated from Kingston High School and Rensselaer Polytechnical Institute at Troy.

In his new post, he will direct construction, maintenance and installation activities in New Jersey Bell's newly formed eastern division, which includes Jersey City, Hackensack and Englewood. He joined the telephone company in 1930, and became repair foreman at Red Bank in March, 1933. THOSE MODERN BLUES

If you think the times in which we live are making you sick, you may be right. British doctors have agreed that a new affliction is plaguing mankind. They've labelled it "Twentieth Century Blues." If you're bothered by such problems as atomic war, the pace of life, housing, anxiety about the job and about the size of the bank balance, and to top all this off, if you feel sick, you're probably suffering from the new malady.

British doctors are so concerned about this affliction, almost unknown in the Victorian era, that they devoted the entire January edition of their magazine, "The Practicioner," to a symposium on it. They have agreed that people who are the best citizens of their country probably suffer most keenly from the malady, but were divided in their opinion as to whether it can be linked to the ulcer, another affliction of modern man.

The doctors offered no medical cure for this malady. However, they advise that relief can be found in "the peace of God that passeth all understanding." Religion can offer easing of its pangs if not complete cure. They also urge the importance of leisure-time activities, which make some demands on a person's intelligence and which tend to restore his self-respect.

Certainly this is a strange malady to be discussed by medical authorities, but not so strange as the times in which we live. It is heartening to see the countermeasures offered. There have been few happier meetings of science and religion.

REDS WOO FRANCE

True to the policy of "divide and conquer," Russia is working to win France away from the West and to bring about the collapse of the European Defense Community. The Reds have played upon all the traditional hostility and suspicion the French hold for the Germans who play a part in the proposed European Army. Every slight to France by Britain and the United States is played up in the Communist press.

It is unfortunate that in this effort the Communists have the aid of the ultra-conservative element in France who would like to see France break with the idea of European unity. This faction has contributed a great deal to the chaos that has brought so many cabinet changes.

There is in France, however, a sane element which is likely to win out. It is not to be forgotten that the most practical and forceful ideas for European unity have come from French statesmen. In the long run the famous French common sense will dictate a policy of sane cooperation. In the meantime, America will have to worker harder to keep the friendship and the trust of France. Its appeal can and must be stronger than that being made by Russia.

NEW STOCK BUYING PLAN

A new plan has been put into effect whereby shares in American business can be bought on the installment plan, with the individual investor putting in as little as $40 every three months.

Several firms operating through the Exchange have worked out a plan whose features are hoped to appeal to families and individuals of moderate income. Operating on a cash basis, the plan provides for investment in small regular increments. Under the plan the buyer indicates intention to invest a specified amount every month or quarter for a specified time. Arrangements may be terminated at will. In the event the investor decides to stop his participation, he receives the number of shares he has actually purchased.

It is expected that stock ownership, under this new plan, will spread among Americans far more widely than it is now spread.

The more people there are with a stake in our system of doing things, the more secure that system will be.

More than once it has been said that we're bound to have weather, whether or not. Only there are times that we wish we wouldn't get so much of it.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

OUR LABOR UNIONS

Back in the early days of the New Deal, it made sense to quarrel over the nature and purpose of labor unions. I once wrote a book on the subject, which is now out of print, but which warned of the dangers of new trends in trade unionism.

In 1954, the labor unions are in the United States to stay and a system of operations has been established which has the sanction of Congressional action and judicial decision. It serves no valid purpose to oppose trade unionism per se, although it is possible to say that those who opposed Prohibition kept up their opposition until a Constitutional amendment was passed abolishing that abomination.

It is not likely that any opposition to labor unions will lead to a change in the social institutions arising from their existence. American industry has adjusted to the necessity for some form of collective bargaining under the legal arrangements first stipulated in the Wagner Law and now in the Taft-Hartley Law. The proposed revision of the Taft-Hartley Law, as advocated by President Eisenhower, in no manner alters the relationship between management and the unions. It is probable that management desires no radical alterations in those relationships, as was evident in a series of private conferences last Spring and Summer between lawyers representing industry and the unions. In fact, most industries, either separately or in their trade associations, have established permanent labor law departments as a result of the vast changes in management-union problems which have emerged and taken form since 1935.

Whether a union belongs to the A.F. of L., the C.I.O., to John L. Lewis's separate enterprise or to an independent union, it is being managed by professionals whose principal business is to operate labor unions. These professionals may be divided into four categories:

1. Careerists;
2. The old school of Social Democrats;
3. Racketeers;
4. Communists.

The careerists are professionals who operate unions as a way of life and are concerned with the success of their unions. Such men as John L. Lewis and George Meany represent this type of labor leader and generally serve their unions well. They are usually good citizens and are honest as most men are in a competitive work. They subordinate all questions to the interests of their particular union. More and more unions are falling into the hands of these careerists and on the whole, this is as it should be.

The old line Social Democrats are a small but powerful remnant of pre-Wagner Law trade unionism, when the struggle between trade unions and management was generally difficult, and the unions not very successful. These leaders are ideologically Socialists, but they are anti-Communists. The battle between Socialists and Communists is often more violent than most of us realize. It has been continuous since 1903 at London, when the Russion Social Democratic Party split between Bolsheviks and Mensheviks. The hatred of one group for the other is intense. Among the leaders of the Social Democrats are David Dubinsky and Walter Reuther and their political weapon is the Americans for Democratic Action (A.D.A.).

They differ from the non-political careerists in that their trade unionism is definitely based on political concepts and they relate themselves internationally to similar labor movements in other countries, as for example, the British Labour Party. They spend huge sums of money fighting Communism not only in the United States but in foreign countries. For instance, through the influence of David Dubinsky, Jay Lovestone, a former Communist, and Irving Brown, a Socialist, they support and, in a measure, direct anti-Communist activities in European countries.

The racketeers and Communists in trade unionism are, of course, obvious and obnoxious. Efforts to reduce the influence of these two groups have not been altogether successful, the best example of the racketeers being the Longshoremen's Union in New York and the best example of a Communist-dominated union being the UE (United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America). It must be said that the law, politicians, and management are not guiltless in the strength of both the racketeers and the Communists and the sooner the racketeers and Communists are eliminated from American trade unionism, the stronger and more respected all unions will be.

This is written in anticipation of further discussion of this subject whenever the new labor law will be before Congress for consideration.

That Body of Yours

CORRECTION OF DEFECTS IN CHILDREN

"It happens in some homes that a child is born with a defect which will not endanger his life but nevertheless may seriously handicap the development and growth of the child if allowed to remain uncorrected."

I am quoting Dr. Colin C. Ferguson, Winnipeg, Canada, in Canadian Medical Association Journal. Among the several defects mentioned by Dr. Ferguson are harelip, cleft palate, cysts (soft growths on the skin), hernia, lop ears, undescended testicles, hydrocele and others.

These defects, while not dangerous, can, as above stated, interfere with growth and development and, what is often more important, can cause an inferiority complex which affects the child's health and happiness.

It is often a problem for parents and physicians as to just when, at what age, operations to correct these defects should be performed. When the physician and parents can select or decide when they want the operation performed. Dr. Ferguson makes the following suggestions. Dr. Ferguson is Chief Resident in Surgery at the Children's Hospital, Boston, on leave of absence from the Surgical Staff of the Children's Hospital, Winnipeg, Canada.

The best time for the surgical repair of a harelip is from four to six weeks of age when the child is well adjusted to his feedings and is gaining weight.

With cleft palate, the surgical repair should be deferred until the child is sixteen months to two years of age. Before this age, the mouth is too small although Dr. Ferguson believes the operation should be performed before the child learns to talk.

Lop ears—"Except when the ears are exceptionally prominent, girls do not require surgical correction since their hair will cover the deformity." In boys, however, the ears may be so conspicuous that serious personality changes may occur as the result of teasing by playmates. Lop ears should be corrected at age of five, both ears at the same time.

Tetralogy of Fallot—heart disease and deposits of fat and imitation of movements with reduced flow of blood to the lungs. The surgical treatment of these blue babies produces a marked improvement, the operation now becoming more frequent than in past years.

Operations for hernia and undescended testicles are usually delayed until the boy is nine or ten years of age. Webbed fingers are corrected at age of two to three years.

Bed Wetting — Enuresis

Many children and parens are distressed and embarrassed by this ailment. Send for Dr. Barton's helpful leaflet entitled "Enuresis," enclosing 10 cents to cover cost of handling and mailing, to The Bell Syndicate, Inc., in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, Post Office Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington, NEA — President Eisenhower's economic message to Congress gives full treatment to the economic situation, as required by the Full Employment Act of 1946.

What's more, the Congressional Joint Committee on the Economic Report, under the chairmanship of Rep. Jesse Wolcott of Michigan, is now planning to hold a round-table hearing on the message in February and make a report to Congress by March 1, as required by the law.

Last year this committee completely ignored President Truman's final economic report, held no hearings and no meetings. There was considerable beefing about this from some members of the committee, but it seemed the report was not needed.

President Eisenhower himself in his first year in office blew cold, then hot again, on continuing the work of the Council of Economic Advisers, set up under the Full Employment Act.

The Citizens Committee on Reorganization of Government under Dr. Robert Johnson of Temple University had at first recommended the Council be abolished. It was said to have outlived its usefulness. The recommendation was that the three-man Council and its staff of 30 be replaced by a single economic adviser to the President.

Planning Idea

That sounded good until the farm-price skid of a year ago brought up the realization that there might be a recession in the wind. Someone wanted to do some planning to curb its bad effects. Subsequent increases in unemployment emphasized this point.

What finally emerged was a little of both the old and new ideas. The President got a new adviser on his staff. And he finally won from Congress authority and money to keep the three-man Council with full staff. So now "the professors" are back on the job.

Austrian-born Dr. Arthur F. Burns of Columbia University was named presidential adviser in March. In August he was made chairman of the reconstituted Council of Economic Advisers—CEA.

Dr. Gabriel Hauge, former adviser to Governor Dewey of New York and former editor of Business Week, took charge of economic affairs in the White House. He was one of the President's first appointments as an administrative assistant.

Other members of this really top, administration planning committee are: Undersecretary of Treasury Marion B. Folsom, Undersecretary of Agriculture True D. Morse, Undersecretary of Commerce Walter Williams, Assistant Secretary of Labor Rocco Siciliano, Abbott L. Mills of Federal Reserve Board and Assistant Director Paul L. Morrison of the Budget Bureau.

Dr. Hauge is understood to have major responsibility for preparation of the President's economic report to Congress. This is being kept entirely separate from the CEA report to the President, which was made in December.

Leading U. S. Specialists

In addition to the Advisory Board, still another group of consultants has been advising the Council. It is not formally organized, but it includes leading economists from the big U. S. business groups and universities who are called in as specialists in various fields.

Dr. Collis Stocking, a senior economist who has been designated CEA administrative officer, says more of these consultants have been used than formerly. But the old practice of inviting all farm, labor, high tariff and other pressure groups to come in and speak propaganda pieces in formal hearings has been abandoned.

The work of the new Council has been secretive, much more of a closed corporation of brain trusters and much less of a public proceeding than it was in the past.

Though the regular 20-man CEA staff has been biulding up gradually over the past five months, the three-man Council itself was not completed until December. Dr. Neil H. Jacoby, born in Canada of Aferican parents, was named in August. He has been Dean of the School of Business Administration at UCLA. The third man, Dr. Walter W. Stewart, is professor emeritus in the School of Economics and Politics, Institute of Advanced Study, Princeton.

Of the 14 senior economists on the staff, only three are holdovers from the old CEA: Frances M. James, David W. Lusher and Robinson Newcomb. Three more are on loan from other government agencies: Asher Achinstein from Library of Congress, Albert E. Koch of Federal Reserve Board and Alfred Reifman from State Department.

The new members are: M. G. deChazeau of Cornell, Clarence Long of Johns Hopkins, William H. Nichols of Vanderbilt, Raymond J. Saulnier of Columbia, Louis Shere of Indiana, Robert Triffin of Yale, Irving H. Siegel of 20th Century Fund and Dr. Stocking, who has been in government service since 1934.

It revived and was apparently none the worse for wear.

Senate Approves Spending $216,000 for Use of Committee on Governmental Workings

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Feb. 3—They are impersonal and non-partisan in the United States Senate when it comes to fighting communism inside or outside this country. By a vote of 85 to 1, the Senate approved the expenditure of $216,000 for the use of the Senate Committee on governmental operations.

This is the committee of which Senator McCarthy, Republican, of Wisconsin is chairman. For several weeks now there have been press dispatches saying that the Wisconsin senator would have trouble getting a continuing appropriation for his committee and that he was about to be punished for sundry aberrations in the field of his inquiries. But, as has happened time and again for the last 20 years, when there is a roll-call vote in either House of Congress, the tally is overwhelmingly in favor of carrying on the investigations by congressional committees on the subject of communism or corruption or irregularities in governmental administration.

The anti-Communist issue is one that has aroused deep feelings, but the "grass roots" sentiment is that, where there's fire there is smoke and that it is up to the Congress as a watchdog to keep an eye on what is being done by the executive branch of the government to ferret out subversives and to protect the security of the United States.

Many people who never have understood their own Constitution, with its separation of powers and with its checks and balances, have assumed that the legislative branch of the government is subordinate to instead of coordinate with the executive branch. For years there has been a campaign belittling or ridiculing members of Congress and the institution itself. There are citizens who have grown up in recent years believing that a congressional committee hasn't any right to make an inquiry except when it has a specific legislative aim. They overlook the fact that Congress can investigate for the purpose of writing new laws or amending the constitution or to repeal any laws or provisions of the Constitution. The citizen is not obligated always to answer the questions of Congress, but the committees have a virtually unlimited right to ask the questions.

The Senate Committee on Governmental Operations has a broad scope. It goes into questions of improper influences inside the government, misuse of authority, corruption and irregularities of all kinds. By centering in one committee in the House and one in the Senate the supervision of government personnel operations, an extensive work of checking the executive departments and agencies is conducted.

Some citizens, of course, have an exaggerated idea of the anti-Communist issue. The other day a group in Norwalk, Conn., decided to send in names to the Federal Bureau of Investigation based on their own impressions of the loyalty of individuals. This has been rightly condemned as a dangerous practice. The self-appointed group of vigilantes can do harm to a good cause—the furnishing of information to the government. During World War 1 there were units in various cities which sent to the Department of Justice lists of those with German names because they suspected possible connection with the German cause in the war. This led to an abuse which was far worse than anything that has happened since. The memory of these injustices burns vividly in the minds of many loyal citizens who were subjected to embarrassment in those days by self-appointed investigators.

A citizen, acting as an individual, has a right to send information to his government, but the information ought to relate solely to something concrete of which he has personal knowledge as to law violation. It is valueless if it is only hearsay, or if it is rumor, or if it merely concerns another person's views.

The question is asked: "Can't the FBI be depended upon to do it all?" Not long ago, J. Edgar Hoover, head of the FBI, appealed for help from former Communists and others in touch with Communist activities so that the government might be better informed. But he has said there is need also for the work on congressional committees. By the power of subpoena, Congress can bring to light many things that the FBI cannot touch unless there is concrete proof of law violation.

So far as employment in the government is concerned, it is not necessary for a case to be provable in a court of law. It is only necessary to establish a reasonable doubt as to the integrity of an individual employe. Sometimes congressional committees disclose practices that have covered up actual and potential security risks. For today, if a government employe refuses to answer a question from a congressional committee on the ground that it may incriminate him, this is automatically grounds for dismissal from the government service without further proceedings.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Port-Au-Prince, Haiti, Feb. 2—Adam Powell, the Harlem Negro congressman, an ardent Roosevelt "Democrat," recently represented our government in ceremonies celebrating the 150th anniversary of the "independence" of Haiti. Haiti is a nation of about three million, mostly Negroes of straight African descent. Most of the others are hybrids of various hues. The language is a French patois larded with African phrases. Powell's wife is a night-club pianist known as Hazel Scott. The Weekly Sun of Port-Au-Prince said she was a native of Trinidad and reported that, after attending the palace ball for his excellency, President Lieut.-Gen. Paul E. Magloire, she had to hurry to Miami to keep a professional engagement. For this reason, she had to postpone until next April her charity show for a fund named in honor of Mme. President Magloire.

Marian Anderson, the noted Negro singer, did give a show during the festivities. I was told by a member of the American set that she was paid $3,000, a reasonable fee for an artist of her class and renown, but Andre Roosevelt, a member of the Oyster Bay clan, who strongly resembles old Theodore, made further inquiries and heard it both ways. He heard that she did and she didn't. Under the rules and discipline of the unions which Miss Anderson and Powell's wife of necessity must join under the American "democracy," both would expose themselves to heavy fines and other punishment by giving of their talent free without formal permission. Mr. Roosevelt keeps an inn on a mountain 1,500 feet above the bay of Port-Au-Prince. He is a pillar of society, civilization and inter-American understanding. His place is called Ibo Lele, a voodoo term signifying a god of the jungle. He has a swimming pool dangling on a cliff, and he greets each guest on arrival with a rum punch containing the best elements of pentathol, nepenthe and dolce far niente.

The democracy of the American Democratic party is a never-ending source of more and more majestic contempt.

After lending his official presence, presumably at the expense of the American taxpayers, Powell sailed for New York exhaling assurances of his determination to improve Haiti's condition in the sugar market and to obtain larger grants of powdered milk and American surplus butter for Haitian people, who are not well fed. But, even as his noble sentiments were printed in the Sun of Port Au Prince, the same paper published news of a political incident which would have raised howls of fascism, McCarthyism and Kluxery from Powell and all his political kin had anything remotely like it happened in the United States.

Two members of the Haitian chamber of deputies were in jail and one senator was on the lam. The government had grabbed 18 other prisoners, including five printers, who had kicked out hostile political dodgers on a job press.

The Haitian government has my permission to run its own affairs according to its own laws, constitution and wise judgment. I offer no gratuitous and snobbish judgment on its conduct in this emergency. That would come with bad grace from a citizen of the nation which suffers equal persecution from the CIO and the AF of L under charter from the Washington government. It is none of my business how Haiti meets emergencies of this kind and I would like to do the same to Felix Frankfurter, Henry Wallace and Lo Boca Grande.

So I report excerpts from the Haiti Sun not in reproach to the government but as a commentary on the integrity and sincerity of Powell and of the New York Times which, about the same time, was effluviating about the noble significance of the sesquicentennial and thrusting a needle into the sensitive ribs of Rafael Trujillo, the Gismo of the neighboring Dominican Republic, with an intimation that he was a Fascist and not, like Magloire, a "Democrat."

The verbiage of these official communiques is rich in the vitamins of official casuistry.

The first statement from the secretary of state of interior said that "even while the entire populace prepared to pay homage to the fathers of our homeland, persons blinded by ambition and passion had plotted to create an atmosphere of insecurity by circulating alarming rumors intended to set citizens against one another." To this end they distributed tracts "published in contempt of law, each one more calumnious than the one before," disclosing a foolish belief that the democratic demeanor of the government was a sign of weakness.

But—"according to the penal code, public action has been

THOSE MODERN BLUES

If you think the times in which we live are making you sick, you may be right. British doctors have agreed that a new affliction is plaguing mankind. They've labelled it "Twentieth Century Blues." If you're bothered by such problems as atomic war, the pace of life, housing, anxiety about the job and about the size of the bank balance, and to top all this off, if you feel sick, you're probably suffering from the new malady.

British doctors are so concerned about this affliction, almost unknown in the Victorian era, that they devoted the entire January edition of their magazine, "The Practicioner," to a symposium on it. They have agreed that people who are the best citizens of their country probably suffer most keenly from the malady, but were divided in their opinion as to whether it can be linked to the ulcer, another affliction of modern man.

The doctors offered no medical cure for this malady. However, they advise that relief can be found in "the peace of God that passeth all understanding." Religion can offer easing of its pangs if not complete cure. They also urge the importance of leisure-time activities, which make some demands on a person's intelligence and which tend to restore his self-respect.

Certainly this is a strange malady to be discussed by medical authorities, but not so strange as the times in which we live. It is heartening to see the countermeasures offered. There have been few happier meetings of science and religion.

REDS WOO FRANCE

True to the policy of "divide and conquer," Russia is working to win France away from the West and to bring about the collapse of the European Defense Community. The Reds have played upon all the traditional hostility and suspicion the French hold for the Germans who play a part in the proposed European Army. Every slight to France by Britain and the United States is played up in the Communist press.

It is unfortunate that in this effort the Communists have the aid of the ultra-conservative element in France who would like to see France break with the idea of European unity. This faction has contributed a great deal to the chaos that has brought so many cabinet changes.

There is in France, however, a sane element which is likely to win out. It is not to be forgotten that the most practical and forceful ideas for European unity have come from French statesmen. In the long run the famous French common sense will dictate a policy of sane cooperation. In the meantime, America will have to worker harder to keep the friendship and the trust of France. Its appeal can and must be stronger than that being made by Russia.

NEW STOCK BUYING PLAN

A new plan has been put into effect whereby shares in American business can be bought on the installment plan, with the individual investor putting in as little as $40 every three months.

Several firms operating through the Exchange have worked out a plan whose features are hoped to appeal to families and individuals of moderate income. Operating on a cash basis, the plan provides for investment in small regular increments. Under the plan the buyer indicates intention to invest a specified amount every month or quarter for a specified time. Arrangements may be terminated at will. In the event the investor decides to stop his participation, he receives the number of shares he has actually purchased.

It is expected that stock ownership, under this new plan, will spread among Americans far more widely than it is now spread.

The more people there are with a stake in our system of doing things, the more secure that system will be.

More than once it has been said that we're bound to have weather, whether or not. Only there are times that we wish we wouldn't get so much of it.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

OUR LABOR UNIONS

Back in the early days of the New Deal, it made sense to quarrel over the nature and purpose of labor unions. I once wrote a book on the subject, which is now out of print, but which warned of the dangers of new trends in trade unionism.

In 1954, the labor unions are in the United States to stay and a system of operations has been established which has the sanction of Congressional action and judicial decision. It serves no valid purpose to oppose trade unionism per se, although it is possible to say that those who opposed Prohibition kept up their opposition until a Constitutional amendment was passed abolishing that abomination.

It is not likely that any opposition to labor unions will lead to a change in the social institutions arising from their existence. American industry has adjusted to the necessity for some form of collective bargaining under the legal arrangements first stipulated in the Wagner Law and now in the Taft-Hartley Law. The proposed revision of the Taft-Hartley Law, as advocated by President Eisenhower, in no manner alters the relationship between management and the unions. It is probable that management desires no radical alterations in those relationships, as was evident in a series of private conferences last Spring and Summer between lawyers representing industry and the unions. In fact, most industries, either separately or in their trade associations, have established permanent labor law departments as a result of the vast changes in management-union problems which have emerged and taken form since 1935.

Whether a union belongs to the A.F. of L., the C.I.O., to John L. Lewis's separate enterprise or to an independent union, it is being managed by professionals whose principal business is to operate labor unions. These professionals may be divided into four categories:

1. Careerists;
2. The old school of Social Democrats;
3. Racketeers;
4. Communists.

The careerists are professionals who operate unions as a way of life and are concerned with the success of their unions. Such men as John L. Lewis and George Meany represent this type of labor leader and generally serve their unions well. They are usually good citizens and are honest as most men are in a competitive work. They subordinate all questions to the interests of their particular union. More and more unions are falling into the hands of these careerists and on the whole, this is as it should be.

The old line Social Democrats are a small but powerful remnant of pre-Wagner Law trade unionism, when the struggle between trade unions and management was generally difficult, and the unions not very successful. These leaders are ideologically Socialists, but they are anti-Communists. The battle between Socialists and Communists is often more violent than most of us realize. It has been continuous since 1903 at London, when the Russion Social Democratic Party split between Bolsheviks and Mensheviks. The hatred of one group for the other is intense. Among the leaders of the Social Democrats are David Dubinsky and Walter Reuther and their political weapon is the Americans for Democratic Action (A.D.A.).

They differ from the non-political careerists in that their trade unionism is definitely based on political concepts and they relate themselves internationally to similar labor movements in other countries, as for example, the British Labour Party. They spend huge sums of money fighting Communism not only in the United States but in foreign countries. For instance, through the influence of David Dubinsky, Jay Lovestone, a former Communist, and Irving Brown, a Socialist, they support and, in a measure, direct anti-Communist activities in European countries.

The racketeers and Communists in trade unionism are, of course, obvious and obnoxious. Efforts to reduce the influence of these two groups have not been altogether successful, the best example of the racketeers being the Longshoremen's Union in New York and the best example of a Communist-dominated union being the UE (United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America). It must be said that the law, politicians, and management are not guiltless in the strength of both the racketeers and the Communists and the sooner the racketeers and Communists are eliminated from American trade unionism, the stronger and more respected all unions will be.

This is written in anticipation of further discussion of this subject whenever the new labor law will be before Congress for consideration.

CORRECTION OF DEFECTS IN CHILDREN

"It happens in some homes that a child is born with a defect which will not endanger his life but nevertheless may seriously handicap the development and growth of the child if allowed to remain uncorrected."

I am quoting Dr. Colin C. Ferguson, Winnipeg, Canada, in Canadian Medical Association Journal. Among the several defects mentioned by Dr. Ferguson are harelip, cleft palate, cysts (soft growths on the skin), hernia, lop ears, undescended testicles, hydrocele and others.

These defects, while not dangerous, can, as above stated, interfere with growth and development and, what is often more important, can cause an inferiority complex which affects the child's health and happiness.

It is often a problem for parents and physicians as to just when, at what age, operations to correct these defects should be performed. When the physician and parents can select or decide when they want the operation performed. Dr. Ferguson makes the following suggestions. Dr. Ferguson is Chief Resident in Surgery at the Children's Hospital, Boston, on leave of absence from the Surgical Staff of the Children's Hospital, Winnipeg, Canada.

The best time for the surgical repair of a harelip is from four to six weeks of age when the child is well adjusted to his feedings and is gaining weight.

With cleft palate, the surgical repair should be deferred until the child is sixteen months to two years of age. Before this age, the mouth is too small although Dr. Ferguson believes the operation should be performed before the child learns to talk.

Lop ears—"Except when the ears are exceptionally prominent, girls do not require surgical correction since their hair will cover the deformity." In boys, however, the ears may be so conspicuous that serious personality changes may occur as the result of teasing by playmates. Lop ears should be corrected at age of five, both ears at the same time.

Tetralogy of Fallot—heart disease and deposits of fat and imitation of movements with reduced flow of blood to the lungs. The surgical treatment of these blue babies produces a marked improvement, the operation now becoming more frequent than in past years.

Operations for hernia and undescended testicles are usually delayed until the boy is nine or ten years of age. Webbed fingers are corrected at age of two to three years.

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington, NEA — President Eisenhower's economic message to Congress gives full treatment to the economic situation, as required by the Full Employment Act of 1946.

What's more, the Congressional Joint Committee on the Economic Report, under the chairmanship of Rep. Jesse Wolcott of Michigan, is now planning to hold a round-table hearing on the message in February and make a report to Congress by March 1, as required by the law.

Last year this committee completely ignored President Truman's final economic report, held no hearings and no meetings. There was considerable beefing about this from some members of the committee, but it seemed the report was not needed.

President Eisenhower himself in his first year in office blew cold, then hot again, on continuing the work of the Council of Economic Advisers, set up under the Full Employment Act.

The Citizens Committee on Reorganization of Government under Dr. Robert Johnson of Temple University had at first recommended the Council be abolished. It was said to have outlived its usefulness. The recommendation was that the three-man Council and its staff of 30 be replaced by a single economic adviser to the President.

That sounded good until the farm-price skid of a year ago brought up the realization that there might be a recession in the wind. Someone wanted to do some planning to curb its bad effects. Subsequent increases in unemployment emphasized this point.

What finally emerged was a little of both the old and new ideas. The President got a new adviser on his staff. And he finally won from Congress authority and money to keep the three-man Council with full staff. So now "the professors" are back on the job.

Austrian-born Dr. Arthur F. Burns of Columbia University was named presidential adviser in March. In August he was made chairman of the reconstituted Council of Economic Advisers—CEA.

Dr. Gabriel Hauge, former adviser to Governor Dewey of New York and former editor of Business Week, took charge of economic affairs in the White House. He was one of the President's first appointments as an administrative assistant.

Dr. Hauge is understood to have major responsibility for preparation of the President's economic report to Congress. This is being kept entirely separate from the CEA report to the President, which was made in December.

Washington, Feb. 3—They are impersonal and non-partisan in the United States Senate when it comes to fighting communism inside or outside this country. By a vote of 85 to 1, the Senate approved the expenditure of $216,000 for the use of the Senate Committee on governmental operations.

This is the committee of which Senator McCarthy, Republican, of Wisconsin is chairman. For several weeks now there have been press dispatches saying that the Wisconsin senator would have trouble getting a continuing appropriation for his committee and that he was about to be punished for sundry aberrations in the field of his inquiries. But, as has happened time and again for the last 20 years, when there is a roll-call vote in either House of Congress, the tally is overwhelmingly in favor of carrying on the investigations by congressional committees on the subject of communism or corruption or irregularities in governmental administration.

The anti-Communist issue is one that has aroused deep feelings, but the "grass roots" sentiment is that, where there's fire there is smoke and that it is up to the Congress as a watchdog to keep an eye on what is being done by the executive branch of the government to ferret out subversives and to protect the security of the United States.

Many people who never have understood their own Constitution, with its separation of powers and with its checks and balances, have assumed that the legislative branch of the government is subordinate to instead of coordinate with the executive branch. For years there has been a campaign belittling or ridiculing members of Congress and the institution itself. There are citizens who have grown up in recent years believing that a congressional committee hasn't any right to make an inquiry except when it has a specific legislative aim. They overlook the fact that Congress can investigate for the purpose of writing new laws or amending the constitution or to repeal any laws or provisions of the Constitution. The citizen is not obligated always to answer the questions of Congress, but the committees have a virtually unlimited right to ask the questions.

The Senate Committee on Governmental Operations has a broad scope. It goes into questions of improper influences inside the government, misuse of authority, corruption and irregularities of all kinds. By centering in one committee in the House and one in the Senate the supervision of government personnel operations, an extensive work of checking the executive departments and agencies is conducted.

Some citizens, of course, have an exaggerated idea of the anti-Communist issue. The other day a group in Norwalk, Conn., decided to send in names to the Federal Bureau of Investigation based on their own impressions of the loyalty of individuals. This has been rightly condemned as a dangerous practice. The self-appointed group of vigilantes can do harm to a good cause—the furnishing of information to the government. During World War 1 there were units in various cities which sent to the Department of Justice lists of those with German names because they suspected possible connection with the German cause in the war. This led to an abuse which was far worse than anything that has happened since. The memory of these injustices burns vividly in the minds of many loyal citizens who were subjected to embarrassment in those days by self-appointed investigators.

A citizen, acting as an individual, has a right to send information to his government, but the information ought to relate solely to something concrete of which he has personal knowledge as to law violation. It is valueless if it is only hearsay, or if it is rumor, or if it merely concerns another person's views.

The question is asked: "Can't the FBI be depended upon to do it all?" Not long ago, J. Edgar Hoover, head of the FBI, appealed for help from former Communists and others in touch with Communist activities so that the government might be better informed. But he has said there is need also for the work on congressional committees. By the power of subpoena, Congress can bring to light many things that the FBI cannot touch unless there is concrete proof of law violation.

So far as employment in the government is concerned, it is not necessary for a case to be provable in a court of law. It is only necessary to establish a reasonable doubt as to the integrity of an individual employe. Sometimes congressional committees disclose practices that have covered up actual and potential security risks. For today, if a government employe refuses to answer a question from a congressional committee on the ground that it may incriminate him, this is automatically grounds for dismissal from the government service without further proceedings.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Port-Au-Prince, Haiti, Feb. 2—Adam Powell, the Harlem Negro congressman, an ardent Roosevelt "Democrat," recently represented our government in ceremonies celebrating the 150th anniversary of the "independence" of Haiti. Haiti is a nation of about three million, mostly Negroes of straight African descent. Most of the others are hybrids of various hues. The language is a French patois larded with African phrases. Powell's wife is a night-club pianist known as Hazel Scott. The Weekly Sun of Port-Au-Prince said she was a native of Trinidad and reported that, after attending the palace ball for his excellency, President Lieut.-Gen. Paul E. Magloire, she had to hurry to Miami to keep a professional engagement. For this reason, she had to postpone until next April her charity show for a fund named in honor of Mme. President Magloire.

Marian Anderson, the noted Negro singer, did give a show during the festivities. I was told by a member of the American set that she was paid $3,000, a reasonable fee for an artist of her class and renown, but Andre Roosevelt, a member of the Oyster Bay clan, who strongly resembles old Theodore, made further inquiries and heard it both ways. He heard that she did and she didn't. Under the rules and discipline of the unions which Miss Anderson and Powell's wife of necessity must join under the American "democracy," both would expose themselves to heavy fines and other punishment by giving of their talent free without formal permission. Mr. Roosevelt keeps an inn on a mountain 1,500 feet above the bay of Port-Au-Prince. He is a pillar of society, civilization and inter-American understanding. His place is called Ibo Lele, a voodoo term signifying a god of the jungle. He has a swimming pool dangling on a cliff, and he greets each guest on arrival with a rum punch containing the best elements of pentathol, nepenthe and dolce far niente.

The democracy of the American Democratic party is a never-ending source of more and more majestic contempt.

After lending his official presence, presumably at the expense of the American taxpayers, Powell sailed for New York exhaling assurances of his determination to improve Haiti's condition in the sugar market and to obtain larger grants of powdered milk and American surplus butter for Haitian people, who are not well fed. But, even as his noble sentiments were printed in the Sun of Port Au Prince, the same paper published news of a political incident which would have raised howls of fascism, McCarthyism and Kluxery from Powell and all his political kin had anything remotely like it happened in the United States.

Two members of the Haitian chamber of deputies were in jail and one senator was on the lam. The government had grabbed 18 other prisoners, including five printers, who had kicked out hostile political dodgers on a job press.

The Haitian government has my permission to run its own affairs according to its own laws, constitution and wise judgment. I offer no gratuitous and snobbish judgment on its conduct in this emergency. That would come with bad grace from a citizen of the nation which suffers equal persecution from the CIO and the AF of L under charter from the Washington government. It is none of my business how Haiti meets emergencies of this kind and I would like to do the same to Felix Frankfurter, Henry Wallace and Lo Boca Grande.

So I report excerpts from the Haiti Sun not in reproach to the government but as a commentary on the integrity and sincerity of Powell and of the New York Times which, about the same time, was effluviating about the noble significance of the sesquicentennial and thrusting a needle into the sensitive ribs of Rafael Trujillo, the Gismo of the neighboring Dominican Republic, with an intimation that he was a Fascist and not, like Magloire, a "Democrat."

The verbiage of these official communiques is rich in the vitamins of official casuistry.

The first statement from the secretary of state of interior said that "even while the entire populace prepared to pay homage to the fathers of our homeland, persons blinded by ambition and passion had plotted to create an atmosphere of insecurity by circulating alarming rumors intended to set citizens against one another." To this end they distributed tracts "published in contempt of law, each one more calumnious than the one before," disclosing a foolish belief that the democratic demeanor of the government was a sign of weakness.

But—"according to the penal code, public action has been

Mayor Tells Lions Of Arterial Route

The arterial route plan proposed by the state for Kingston continues to be the number one topic for discussion at meetings of civic organizations.

The plan was outlined Tuesday noon by Mayor Frederick H. Stang at the reguar meeting of the Kingston Lions Club at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

Mayor Stang emphasized, as he has in past appearances, the fact that the plan may be approved in general at this time without obligating the city to accepting any of its details until they are taken up one by one later. The only issue now, it was pointed out, is whether to approve the plan in principle so that legislative action may be taken to place the streets involved on the state highway map.

What the placing of the streets on the state map will mean in the way of state aided maintenance, snow removal and reconstruction was pointed out by the mayor.

Specific changes, such as in the plan for downtown Kingston, can be studied later, when the details are presented separately for approval, he reminded those present. The Lions Club has taken no action upon the plan, but expects to include it on the agenda for its February board of directors meeting.

Kingston Public School Series

Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of stories about the teacher in the Kingston public school system, indicating broadly his attitudes, aspirations and problems, with particular attention to his request for a pay increase.

Kingston's 236 teachers are listed on a salary schedule consisting of 16 "steps."

Each year the teachers on a particular salary step are advanced to the next step.

The schedule begins at $2,800 for a teacher on the first step—that is, in the first year of teaching. He receives $2,800 if he has an AB degree or four years of training or less. If a first-year teacher has an MA degree (Master's degree) or the equivalent (30 credits beyond the AB) he receives $200 more—that is, he receives $3,000 instead of $2,800.

There are four teachers on the first step, three of whom have MA degrees.

A teacher on the second step receives $2,900 for an AB degree or four years of training or less—$3,100 for an MA. There are 10 teachers on this step, four of whom have MA's.

A teacher on the third step receives $3,000 for the BA or less—$3,200 for the MA. There are 11 teachers on this step, of whom three have MA's.

A teacher on the fourth step receives $3,250 for the AB or less—$3,450 for the MA. Of 11 teachers on this step one has an MA.

A teacher on the fifth step receives $3,400 for the AB or less—$3,600 for the MA. Of 10 teachers on this step four have MA's.

A teacher on the sixth step receives $3,550 for the AB or less—$3,750 for the MA. Of 16 teachers on this step four have MA's.

A teacher on the seventh step receives $3,700 for the AB or less—$3,900 for the MA. Of seven teachers on this step six have MA's.

A teacher on the eighth step receives $3,850 for the AB or less—$4,050 for the MA. Of nine teachers on this step two have MA's.

A teacher on the ninth step receives $4,000 for the AB or less—$4,200 for the MA. Of seven teachers on this step two have MA's.

A teacher on the 10th step receives $4,150 for the AB or less—$4,350 for the MA. Of 12 teachers on this step five have MA's.

A teacher on the 11th step receives $4,300 for the AB or less—$4,500 for the MA. Of 17 teachers on this step six have MA's.

A teacher on the 12th step receives $4,300 for the AB or less (no advance above the 11th step)—$4,500 for the MA. Of 120 teachers on this step 31 have MA's.

A teacher on the 13th step receives $4,600 for the AB or less—$4,800 for the MA. There are two teachers on this step, both of whom have the MA degree.

A total of 73 teachers in the local school system have MA degrees or the equivalent (30 credits beyond the AB). One-hundred and sixty-three have an AB or less.

There are no teachers on the 14th, 15th or 16th steps of the schedule.

A teacher on the 14th step would receive $4,600 for the AB and $4,800 for the MA.

A teacher on the 15th step would receive the same.

A teacher on the 16th step would receive $4,900 for the AB or less and $5,100 for the MA.

During the first three years (first three steps) the teacher is on probation. At the end of the third year he is placed on permanent tenure.

The fourth step and each subsequent step through Step 13 is automatic. The teacher advances one step each year. From Step 13 to 14, from 14 to 15 and from 15 to 16, however, the advance is based upon merit. This means that the promotion must be approved by the board of education upon recommendation by the superintendent of education.

Some teachers in the local school system have permanent licenses good for life. These were acquired prior to 1941. In that year, however, a law was passed requiring every teacher entering the profession on the high school level to have an MA degree or the equivalent (30 credits beyond the BA degree).

Under the new law a teacher must obtain six additional credits every 10 years in order to retain his certificate.

Stang Asks Council to Move For Bus Runs in Third Ward

A proposal by Mayor Frederick H. Stang that the alderman consider providing bus service for residents of Colonial Gardens, the city's housing development, was referred to the railroad and bus committee at last night's Common Council session.

A letter from the mayor to the council indicated that residents in the development have asked for service, and the mayor suggested that the railroad and bus committee contact the Kingston City Transportation Corp., and determine if they could arrange a schedule to include the Colonial Gardens area.

Would Extend Route

Third Ward Edwin Radel said that three years ago he had tried to get bus service extended into the third ward. He suggested that this be considered now if not enough fares are available from including Colonial Gardens, and he thought extension of service into the fourth ward could also be considered. This was referred to the bus committee.

Radel also asked in a resolution that the mayor and council contact New York Central Railroad authorities and encourage them to complete the crossing safety plan they had recently outlined.

This should be done, he said, at the earliest possible date, and he referred to a recent accident at the TenBroeck avenue crossing.

Writes to Railroad

Second Ward Alderman Benjamin Storms informed Radel that the proposal had been already discussed in the mayor's office and the mayor had written a letter to the railroad.

Radel said he didn't think anyone could get better action than that on a resolution, and he was glad that the mayor had written asking for quick and effective action.

A resolution by James K. Ryan, 10th ward and Charles Cole, 13th, asked the council to communicate with the mayor and corporation counsel and ask them to investigate the possibility of an ordinance governing hazardous buildings similar to one recently drawn to cover unused refrigerators.

Alderman-at-large Kelly said Corporation Counsel James J. Abernethy was present and he asked him to explain. Abernethy said it was a difficult job, that work had been started on it and one would be drawn up as soon as possible.

Glad Counsel Present

Radel said, "It was a pleasure to know that the corporation counsel was within 10 paces," of the aldermen so that he could be called upon for advice and comment, and he hoped the practice would continue. Kelly said the corporation counsel had indicated to him that he would be glad to confer with members of the council at any time.

The council voted permission to Andrew J. Murphy, 3rd, recreation superintendent, to attend at Long Beach, L. I., Feb. 16, the first recreation work shop ever held for recreation executives employed by municipalities. The state youth council is to make reimbursements for expenses as part of the state-aid program, the letter said.

A letter from Mayor Stang announcing the appointment of Arthur W. Buddenhagen, of 9 Jefferson Place, to the Board of Electrical Examiners, was read and filed. He replaces Henry D. Eltinge who resigned.

The aldermen approved the application of Adirondack Transit Lines, Inc., to use several uptown streets for the purpose of connecting with the New York State Thruway.

These include Crown and North Front streets, Clinton and Washington avenues. A public hearing was held on the proposal Jan. 28.

Two Claims Filed

A claim for $127.91 was filed by Richard Langton, of Jansen avenue, and another by Vincent DeCicco, of 16 Cordts street for $22 for damages done in automobile mishaps at Delaware avenue and Cordts street.

Fifth Ward Alderman Samuel Perry explained that the claims arose out of a water situation at the intersection which led to the formation of ice. The claims were referred to the corporation counsel and the public works department with a request for immediate action.

Ask Strand Change

Alderman George Norton, Jr., sixth ward asked that East Strand, which last year had been made a one-way street be again designated for two-way traffic. A request had been made from 15 residents of the street, who signed a petition, he said. It was referred to the traffic control committee.

Eighth Ward Alderman Arthur J. Smith asked that the Board of Public Works install proper signs at West Chestnut street at Montrepose avenue to indicate that the remainder of West Chestnut street is a dead-end street. This sign is needed to stop unnecessary traffic in the area, he said.

Requests Study of Lights

Radel asked that "ancient lighting fixtures" on Stephan street near Foxhall avenue be changed and that a study of the lights between Farrelly street and Foxhall avenue be made on Stephan street to determine if they are up to standard. The resolution was referred to the public works department.

Promises Cooperation

It was revealed at the session that a communication from the office of B. D. Tallamy, state publis works superintendent, indicated that construction details and suggested changes in the arterial route plan could be worked out satisfactorily, and that the state would cooperate with the city in every way possible to carry out the arterial route plan, which it considered mutually beneficial to the state and city. The letter was sent to Albert Kurdt, executive secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

200 Pilgrims Are the Magh Mela—is held at the spot every year from Jan. 14 to March 4. It commemorates a battle on the site in Hindu mythology in which the gods defeated a horde of demons.

Every 12th Year

Every 12th year, however, this ceremony becomes the Kumbh Mela and is more sacred. Every 12th Kumbh Mela, which Hindu astrologers believe coincides with a mythical eclipse of the new moon, reaches the acme of religious importance.

To the devout, there is no better time or place to die, for death during the 12th Kumbh Mela would mean a direct passage to heaven.

Prime Minister Nehru was to visit the festival today and Indian President Rajendra Prasad had been scheduled to join the bathers. There were no indications where the two government leaders were when the stampede occurred.

More than two million pilgrims had waited all night on the river banks amid cold rains. They hoped to bathe during the first three hours after the daylight eclipsed the new moon, considered by the Hindus the most auspicious time for the ceremony.

Their frenzied eagerness to reach the waters resulted in the tragedy.

Ellenville Man Held On Morals Charge

Norman William Witt, 24, of Ellenville, was arrested in Kingston late last night by Special Investigator Arthur Brown of the Ulster County Sheriff's Office on a morals charge.

He was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Clarence Rappleyea of the town of Ulster who adjourned examination until 3 p. m. Friday, Feb. 5.

Witt was committed to the Ulster County Jail charged with violation of Section 483 of the Penal Law—endangering the life and health of a child.

Co-Ed Gets Assurance

Augusta, Maine, Feb. 3 (AP)—Executive clemency has assured a former Colby College co-ed that her expected child won't be born behind prison bars. Gov. Cross and his council yesterday granted a commutation of sentence to Mrs. Harriet Sart Rudd of Nahant, Mass., that will mean freedom for her on Feb. 28. She began a one-to-two-year term in the women's reformatory last October for concealing the body of an illegitimate daughter she bore alone in her dormitory room in Jan. 1953.

Rapid Hose to Meet

Sheldon Resigns Hospital Post

Frank B. Matthews, president of the Board of Trustees of Kingston Hospital, announced today through the board's public relations committee, that the resignation of William B. Sheldon, the hospital's administrator, has been accepted.

The resignation is effective March 31. Sheldon said he has no immediate plans for the future and the board's announcement made no mention of a possible successor.

The administrator came here from Poughkeepsie five years ago Feb. 1 to replace Miss Jessie D. Allan, who had conducted the affairs of the hospital for many years.

A statement from the trustees on the resignation said it was accepted with regrets and a vote of thanks was extended to the administrator for his work in improving the hospital and making it a stronger institution.

The board acted upon the resignation at a special meeting yesterday afternoon.

Uptown Merchants

chants participating in the same attempt to give extra values during the Kingston Days sale and this year is no exception.

Shoppers are asked to look for the stores displaying the big Yellow and Black Kingston Days posters in their windows.

There will be savings for every member of the family at this mid-winter affair which has become one of the most popular sales events of the entire year.

Parking facilities will be available at the big merchants parking lot back of North Front street as well as in the metered space at the rear of the court house.

The committee which has had in charge arrangements for the Kingston Days February Sale are Arthur London, chairman, Herbert Greenwald, Leonard Scales and Joseph Scott.

Otis Is Arrested

Kenneth Otis, 48, of 69 Gage street, was arrested at 6:45 p. m., yesterday by Sgt. Grover Hoffay at police headquarters on a charge of grand larceny, second degree. He waived examination before City Judge Raymond J. Mino today and was held for the grand jury. Police said Otis is charged with taking $150 from his wife without her consent.

Financial and Commercial

Asks No-Coffee Wednesdays

Common Council Is Led in Prayer as New Custom Starts

A prayer opened a Common Council session here last night for the first time in many years, with the exception of annual meetings.

The Rev. Donald E. Brown, minister of the First Baptist Church, was the first called upon to start the practice, and his prayer was followed by a salute to the flag, which was added by Alderman-at-large Joseph Kelly.

Alderman James J. Ryan, tenth ward proposed last month that all council meetings be opened with prayer and he and Alderman Harry Brandt, seventh ward, were appointed by Kelly as a committee to make arrangements.

Call for Divine Guidance

The committee's report last night said:

"Tonight we inaugurate the practice of opening all regular meetings of the Common Council with prayer. The members of the committee wish to express their deep appreciation to the ordained clergy of the City of Kingston, without whose wholehearted cooperation and support, this program would not have been possible. In these troubled times we can, all of us, benefit from divine guidance in our every day life as well as in our efforts to administer the city government to the best of our ability.

"Some members of the clergy, whose duties will not permit them to be present on the first Tuesday of the month, have expressed a desire to participate in the program. We expect that these gentlemen can be accommodated at special sessions as they occur.

"A copy of the schedule will be provided for the use of the city clerk and it is requested that he will notify the participants four or five days in advance."

Stang Asks Council to Move For Bus Runs in Third Ward

A proposal by Mayor Frederick H. Stang that the alderman consider providing bus service for residents of Colonial Gardens, the city's housing development, was referred to the railroad and bus committee at last night's Common Council session.

A letter from the mayor to the council indicated that residents in the development have asked for service, and the mayor suggested that the railroad and bus committee contact the Kingston City Transportation Corp., and determine if they could arrange a schedule to include the Colonial Gardens area.

Would Extend Route

Third Ward Edwin Radel said that three years ago he had tried to get bus service extended into the third ward. He suggested that this be considered now if not enough fares are available from including Colonial Gardens, and he thought extension of service into the fourth ward could also be considered. This was referred to the bus committee.

Radel also asked in a resolution that the mayor and council contact New York Central Railroad authorities and encourage them to complete the crossing safety plan they had recently outlined.

This should be done, he said, at the earliest possible date, and he referred to a recent accident at the TenBroeck avenue crossing.

Writes to Railroad

Second Ward Alderman Benjamin Storms informed Radel that the proposal had been already discussed in the mayor's office and the mayor had written a letter to the railroad.

Radel said he didn't think anyone could get better action than that on a resolution, and he was glad that the mayor had written asking for quick and effective action.

A resolution by James K. Ryan, 10th ward and Charles Cole, 13th, asked the council to communicate with the mayor and corporation counsel and ask them to investigate the possibility of an ordinance governing hazardous buildings similar to one recently drawn to cover unused refrigerators.

Alderman-at-large Kelly said Corporation Counsel James J. Abernethy was present and he asked him to explain. Abernethy said it was a difficult job, that work had been started on it and one would be drawn up as soon as possible.

Glad Counsel Present

Radel said, "It was a pleasure to know that the corporation counsel was within 10 paces," of the aldermen so that he could be called upon for advice and comment, and he hoped the practice would continue. Kelly said the corporation counsel had indicated to him that he would be glad to confer with members of the council at any time.

The council voted permission to Andrew J. Murphy, 3rd, recreation superintendent, to attend at Long Beach, L. I., Feb. 16, the first recreation work shop ever held for recreation executives employed by municipalities. The state youth council is to make reimbursements for expenses as part of the state-aid program, the letter said.

A letter from Mayor Stang announcing the appointment of Arthur W. Buddenhagen, of 9 Jefferson Place, to the Board of Electrical Examiners, was read and filed. He replaces Henry D. Eltinge who resigned.

The aldermen approved the application of Adirondack Transit Lines, Inc., to use several uptown streets for the purpose of connecting with the New York State Thruway.

These include Crown and North Front streets, Clinton and Washington avenues. A public hearing was held on the proposal Jan. 28.

Two Claims Filed

A claim for $127.91 was filed by Richard Langton, of Jansen avenue, and another by Vincent DeCicco, of 16 Cordts street for $22 for damages done in automobile mishaps at Delaware avenue and Cordts street.

Fifth Ward Alderman Samuel Perry explained that the claims arose out of a water situation at the intersection which led to the formation of ice. The claims were referred to the corporation counsel and the public works department with a request for immediate action.

Ask Strand Change

Alderman George Norton, Jr., sixth ward asked that East Strand, which last year had been made a one-way street be again designated for two-way traffic. A request had been made from 15 residents of the street, who signed a petition, he said. It was referred to the traffic control committee.

Eighth Ward Alderman Arthur J. Smith asked that the Board of Public Works install proper signs at West Chestnut street at Montrepose avenue to indicate that the remainder of West Chestnut street is a dead-end street. This sign is needed to stop unnecessary traffic in the area, he said.

Requests Study of Lights

Radel asked that "ancient lighting fixtures" on Stephan street near Foxhall avenue be changed and that a study of the lights between Farrelly street and Foxhall avenue be made on Stephan street to determine if they are up to standard. The resolution was referred to the public works department.

Promises Cooperation

It was revealed at the session that a communication from the office of B. D. Tallamy, state public works superintendent, indicated that construction details and suggested changes in the arterial route plan could be worked out satisfactorily, and that the state would cooperate with the city in every way possible to carry out the arterial route plan, which it considered mutually beneficial to the state and city. The letter was sent to Albert Kurdt, executive secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

200 Pilgrims Are the Magh Mela—is held at the spot every year from Jan. 14 to March 4. It commemorates a battle on the site in Hindu mythology in which the gods defeated a horde of demons.

Every 12th Year

Every 12th year, however, this ceremony becomes the Kumbh Mela and is more sacred. Every 12th Kumbh Mela, which Hindu astrologers believe coincides with a mythical eclipse of the new moon, reaches the acme of religious importance.

To the devout, there is no better time or place to die, for death during the 12th Kumbh Mela would mean a direct passage to heaven.

Prime Minister Nehru was to visit the festival today and Indian President Rajendra Prasad had been scheduled to join the bathers. There were no indications where the two government leaders were when the stampede occurred.

More than two million pilgrims had waited all night on the river banks amid cold rains. They hoped to bathe during the first three hours after the daylight eclipsed the new moon, considered by the Hindus the most auspicious time for the ceremony.

Their frenzied eagerness to reach the waters resulted in the tragedy.

Ellenville Man Held On Morals Charge

Norman William Witt, 24, of Ellenville, was arrested in Kingston late last night by Special Investigator Arthur Brown of the Ulster County Sheriff's Office on a morals charge.

He was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Clarence Rappleyea of the town of Ulster who adjourned examination until 3 p. m. Friday, Feb. 5.

Witt was committed to the Ulster County Jail charged with violation of Section 483 of the Penal Law—endangering the life and health of a child.

Co-Ed Gets Assurance

Augusta, Maine, Feb. 3 (AP)—Executive clemency has assured a former Colby College co-ed that her expected child won't be born behind prison bars. Gov. Cross and his council yesterday granted a commutation of sentence to Mrs. Harriet Sart Rudd of Nahant, Mass., that will mean freedom for her on Feb. 28. She began a one-to-two-year term in the women's reformatory last October for concealing the body of an illegitimate daughter she bore alone in her dormitory room in Jan. 1953.

Sheldon Resigns Hospital Post

Frank B. Matthews, president of the Board of Trustees of Kingston Hospital, announced today through the board's public relations committee, that the resignation of William B. Sheldon, the hospital's administrator, has been accepted.

The resignation is effective March 31. Sheldon said he has no immediate plans for the future and the board's announcement made no mention of a possible successor.

The administrator came here from Poughkeepsie five years ago Feb. 1 to replace Miss Jessie D. Allan, who had conducted the affairs of the hospital for many years.

A statement from the trustees on the resignation said it was accepted with regrets and a vote of thanks was extended to the administrator for his work in improving the hospital and making it a stronger institution.

The board acted upon the resignation at a special meeting yesterday afternoon.

Otis Is Arrested

Kenneth Otis, 48, of 69 Gage street, was arrested at 6:45 p. m., yesterday by Sgt. Grover Hoffay at police headquarters on a charge of grand larceny, second degree. He waived examination before City Judge Raymond J. Mino today and was held for the grand jury. Police said Otis is charged with taking $150 from his wife without her consent.

Common Council Is Led in Prayer as New Custom Starts

A prayer opened a Common Council session here last night for the first time in many years, with the exception of annual meetings.

The Rev. Donald E. Brown, minister of the First Baptist Church, was the first called upon to start the practice, and his prayer was followed by a salute to the flag, which was added by Alderman-at-large Joseph Kelly.

Alderman James J. Ryan, tenth ward proposed last month that all council meetings be opened with prayer and he and Alderman Harry Brandt, seventh ward, were appointed by Kelly as a committee to make arrangements.

Call for Divine Guidance

The committee's report last night said:

"Tonight we inaugurate the practice of opening all regular meetings of the Common Council with prayer. The members of the committee wish to express their deep appreciation to the ordained clergy of the City of Kingston, without whose wholehearted cooperation and support, this program would not have been possible. In these troubled times we can, all of us, benefit from divine guidance in our every day life as well as in our efforts to administer the city government to the best of our ability.

"Some members of the clergy, whose duties will not permit them to be present on the first Tuesday of the month, have expressed a desire to participate in the program. We expect that these gentlemen can be accommodated at special sessions as they occur.

"A copy of the schedule will be provided for the use of the city clerk and it is requested that he will notify the participants four or five days in advance."

KOREA'S AIR LESSONS

1. Superiority

(Korea's costs were high, but it taught the U. S. air force a great deal. In the first of three articles by the chief of The Associated Press Bureau in Tokyo, the commander of Far East Air Forces discusses the valuable lessons learned the hard way over Korea's rugged terrain. These exclusive interviews have been passed by air force censors).

BY ROBERT EUNSON

Tokyo, Feb. 3 (AP) — Korea, a bomb-blasted peninsula sticking down into the Yellow and Japan Seas, has cost the United States dearly.

But Gen. Otto P. (Opie) Weyland believes air superiority crippled the Communists in Korea by knocking out their planes, supplies, equipment and manpower, while our infantry held the forward defense line and the navy protected the sea lines of communication.

"Although in the minds of some men, too many millions of U. S. dollars have been pumped into the Korean hillsides, the lessons learned may save the freedom of the world," the four-star commanding general of Far East Air Forces said in an interview.

"We are pretty sure now that the Communists wanted peace, not because of a two-year stalemate on the ground, but to get airpower off its back.

Jets Superior Weapons

"We know U. S. air force jets, once criticized as too fast for the Korean conflict, proved a superior weapon on the deck or at 50,000 feet — dissolving factories or knocking MIGs from the sky 110 to 2 as in the last two months of the fight.

"We know that the jet fighter has come into its own! Forty-eight rockets, all capable of knocking down an enemy bomber or fighter, can be fired from a jet fighter. Two 1,000-pound bombs or a weapon of mass destruction can be carried by jet fighters and pinpointed to demolish a factory, or wipe out a military communications center or an enemy airbase stocked with planes which could strike a score of American cities."

So says a quiet man, blond, over 6 feet tall, America's foremost air tactician and top combat leader, with 19 months' command experience in Europe and 36 in the Far East.

New Warfare Concept

A new concept of warfare was developed in the last two years of the Korean conflict—that of allowing the ground troops to hold the line while the air force pounds everything of value behind the lines.

There was only one thing wrong with this method—the Communists knew about it.

"Offensive aid interdiction (in military language, that means blasting supply lines) was difficult after the (armistice) talks started," Weyland said, "because there was no ground offensive which would bring the enemy out into the open. He didn't have to commit his reserves or supply his front line units, if he didn't want to, because he knew he wasn't going to have to stop a ground offensive.

"Consequently, if the enemy at the front needed supplies he simply moved back and got them. Or if he ran out of ammunition he just quit shooting. What difference did it make?

"He could save up his ammunition in some sectors and then fire it all at once in support of a limited ground action."

Was Two-Fold

Weyland said that after armistice talks began and the object of the Korean war was to gain an armistice rather than a total victory, the ground force mission was two-fold:

1. Insure that all air and ground installations stayed in friendly hands.

2. Defend certain terrain features with a view to minimizing casualties pending an armistice.

The object of the air force, Weyland said, was to put so much pressure on the enemy from the sky that he would have to agree to an armistice and give up his goal of overrunning Korea.

"The enemy was suffering so many losses and having so much trouble supplying his troops he had to have the armistice.

"Sure they got some supplies through and they got some people through. It was like some foreign country holding the lower half of Florida and trying to keep the whole United States from supplying the northern half. The weight of people alone would get some of it through. The Communists had all of Manchuria feeding North Korea!"

One reason we couldn't stop all supplies, was because "no suitable weapon has yet been invented to combat the 'A' frame." An 'A' frame is a type of harness which Korean laborers carry on their backs to transport incredible loads. Both the North and South Korean armies were able to supply troops in rough terrain and far from the roads by the use of the 'A' frame and long trudging columns of laborers.

Techniques Developed

While the air force was carrying out its mission of hammering the enemy into submission, several techniques in warfare were developed, Gen. Weyland says.

"In the last war we used ground controllers for close support missions, but jets are fast. Often you can't sit up there and wait for someone to spot a target when you are in a jet, and they use lots of fuel down close to the ground.

"When we realized we would have to switch to jets, to maintain air superiority, we devised a system of having a slower plane, the North American T6, pick out the target, then call in the jets and direct them onto the strike.

"Also, the terrain in Korea made it necessary to search from the air. Our T6 Mosquito plane pilots learned the terrain in their sector and could read it like a book. They could tell whenever the enemy made any change in the topography and they knew where he was hiding.

"So they'd put a smoke rocket on the spot and call for the jets or the Mustang F51s to come in and lay their eggs."

Weyland said great advances were also made during the Korean war in the use of radar, but said he could not go into too many details.

"In the last war," he said, "we had radar for guiding bombers and fighter bombers, but nothing as good as we had in Korea. In fact, when the MIGs got so violent in March, 1951, and we switched our B29s from daylight to night raids, there was almost no loss in accuracy.

Bombs Through Muck

"Those big guys can sit up there now and bomb through the darndest muck you ever saw and knock out a factory, a bridge, or enemy strong points and troops just a short way in front of our own lines, with no risk to our own troops."

When Weyland (he pronounces it to rhyme with Highland) speaks of improvements in air war technique, every one listens. He has had more combat experience than any other general officer in the U. S. Air Force—with his total of almost five years as a combat commander—and he guided the air war in Korea with great success almost from the beginning.

As commander of the 19th Tactical Air Command, Weyland roared across Europe with the late Gen. George S. Patton, whose Third Army was powerhousing the allied offensive.

Weyland still cherishes letters from Patton, among them one which said: "As usual we feel that the great successes achieved are the result of the unselfish cooperation and comradeship existing between the air and ground troops."

Light Rain, Snow Fall in Wide Areas

(By the Associated Press)

Light rain and snow fell in widely scattered areas from the Rockies to the Atlantic coast today but no severe cold was reported in the nation.

The warming trend of the past few days reached into New England where temperatures were 15 to 30 degrees higher than yesterday. It was 29 above at Houlton, Maine, early today, compared to 9 below yesterday.

However, some colder air moved into the Great Lakes region, dropping temperatures 7 to 15 degrees. But generally readings were above seasonal levels. It was below freezing over the Great Lakes, in New England and in sections of the Rockies.

Light snow fell in parts of New York and New England while snow mixed with rain was reported in sections of West Virginia. Rain fell in eastern Kentucky while showers hit areas of Texas and in the western Rockies. Fog was reported again today west of the Rockies. Fair weather prevailed in other sections. Highest readings were along the extreme southern border from Florida to California.

Ohio, a state of the Unite States since 1803, was officially admitted to the union in 1953 when Congress corrected a technical omission in the original legislation.

Bills in Legislature

Albany, Feb. 3 (AP)—Two Democrats propose that counties get a bigger share of state-collected motor fuel taxes, and that some of each county's split be passed on to cities and villages.

Sen. Peter J. Dalessandro and Assemblyman D-Cady Herrick, both of Albany county, introduced a measure yesterday that would increase from 10 to 15 per cent the share distributed to counties outside New York city.

Twenty per cent of each county's motor-fuel tax revenue would be distributed to cities and villages on a population basis. The funds are used for highway maintenance.

A joint legislative committee to study laws covering banking institutions was proposed by Sen. Frank S. McCullough, Rye Republican.

In a resolution, he suggested a $25,000 study by three senators and four assemblymen of laws McCullough said had been adopted "piecemeal." He said fields of banking and financial activity should be clarified to eliminate "overlapping of functions and undesirable confusion in the public mind."

A bill that would repeal a provision affecting attorneys or engineers hired by towns without a town attorney or town engineer was introduced by Assemblyman Theodore Hill, Jr., Westchester Republican. The limit now is $3,000 annually.

An other measure would require the education commissioner make rules for monthly inspection of school bus equipment. It was introduced by Assemblyman Jacob H. Gilbert-D, Bronx.

White marble decorations of Greek temples, now exhibited as examples of Greek culture, usually were painted in brilliant colors when they were first erected.

Dairy Promotion Pushed

Madison, Wis., (AP)—Wisconsin farmers invested $585,901 in American Dairy Association sales promotion during 1953, the ADA of Wisconsine reports. The figure was a new record. The money was raised through a voluntary checkoff of one cent per pound of butter fat produced in June and July. This year the checkoff became two cents per 100 pounds of milk, or one-half cent per pound of butterfat an o year-around basis.

KOREA'S AIR LESSONS

1. Superiority

(Korea's costs were high, but it taught the U. S. air force a great deal. In the first of three articles by the chief of The Associated Press Bureau in Tokyo, the commander of Far East Air Forces discusses the valuable lessons learned the hard way over Korea's rugged terrain. These exclusive interviews have been passed by air force censors).

BY ROBERT EUNSON

Tokyo, Feb. 3 (AP) — Korea, a bomb-blasted peninsula sticking down into the Yellow and Japan Seas, has cost the United States dearly.

But Gen. Otto P. (Opie) Weyland believes air superiority crippled the Communists in Korea by knocking out their planes, supplies, equipment and manpower, while our infantry held the forward defense line and the navy protected the sea lines of communication.

"Although in the minds of some men, too many millions of U. S. dollars have been pumped into the Korean hillsides, the lessons learned may save the freedom of the world," the four-star commanding general of Far East Air Forces said in an interview.

"We are pretty sure now that the Communists wanted peace, not because of a two-year stalemate on the ground, but to get airpower off its back.

Jets Superior Weapons

"We know U. S. air force jets, once criticized as too fast for the Korean conflict, proved a superior weapon on the deck or at 50,000 feet — dissolving factories or knocking MIGs from the sky 110 to 2 as in the last two months of the fight.

"We know that the jet fighter has come into its own! Forty-eight rockets, all capable of knocking down an enemy bomber or fighter, can be fired from a jet fighter. Two 1,000-pound bombs or a weapon of mass destruction can be carried by jet fighters and pinpointed to demolish a factory, or wipe out a military communications center or an enemy airbase stocked with planes which could strike a score of American cities."

So says a quiet man, blond, over 6 feet tall, America's foremost air tactician and top combat leader, with 19 months' command experience in Europe and 36 in the Far East.

New Warfare Concept

A new concept of warfare was developed in the last two years of the Korean conflict—that of allowing the ground troops to hold the line while the air force pounds everything of value behind the lines.

There was only one thing wrong with this method—the Communists knew about it.

"Offensive aid interdiction (in military language, that means blasting supply lines) was difficult after the (armistice) talks started," Weyland said, "because there was no ground offensive which would bring the enemy out into the open. He didn't have to commit his reserves or supply his front line units, if he didn't want to, because he knew he wasn't going to have to stop a ground offensive.

"Consequently, if the enemy at the front needed supplies he simply moved back and got them. Or if he ran out of ammunition he just quit shooting. What difference did it make?

"He could save up his ammunition in some sectors and then fire it all at once in support of a limited ground action."

Was Two-Fold

Weyland said that after armistice talks began and the object of the Korean war was to gain an armistice rather than a total victory, the ground force mission was two-fold:

1. Insure that all air and ground installations stayed in friendly hands.

2. Defend certain terrain features with a view to minimizing casualties pending an armistice.

The object of the air force, Weyland said, was to put so much pressure on the enemy from the sky that he would have to agree to an armistice and give up his goal of overrunning Korea.

"The enemy was suffering so many losses and having so much trouble supplying his troops he had to have the armistice.

"Sure they got some supplies through and they got some people through. It was like some foreign country holding the lower half of Florida and trying to keep the whole United States from supplying the northern half. The weight of people alone would get some of it through. The Communists had all of Manchuria feeding North Korea!"

One reason we couldn't stop all supplies, was because "no suitable weapon has yet been invented to combat the 'A' frame." An 'A' frame is a type of harness which Korean laborers carry on their backs to transport incredible loads. Both the North and South Korean armies were able to supply troops in rough terrain and far from the roads by the use of the 'A' frame and long trudging columns of laborers.

Techniques Developed

While the air force was carrying out its mission of hammering the enemy into submission, several techniques in warfare were developed, Gen. Weyland says.

"In the last war we used ground controllers for close support missions, but jets are fast. Often you can't sit up there and wait for someone to spot a target when you are in a jet, and you use lots of fuel down close to the ground.

"When we realized we would have to switch to jets, to maintain air superiority, we devised a system of having a slower plane, the North American T6, pick out the target, then call in the jets and direct them onto the strike.

"Also, the terrain in Korea made it necessary to search from the air. Our T6 Mosquito plane pilots learned the terrain in their sector and could read it like a book. They could tell whenever the enemy made any change in the topography and they knew where he was hiding.

"So they'd put a smoke rocket on the spot and call for the jets or the Mustang F51s to come in and lay their eggs."

Weyland said great advances were also made during the Korean war in the use of radar, but said he could not go into too many details.

"In the last war," he said, "we had radar for guiding bombers and fighter bombers, but nothing as good as we had in Korea. In fact, when the MIGs got so violent in March, 1951, and we switched our B29s from daylight to night raids, there was almost no loss in accuracy.

Bombs Through Muck

"Those big guys can sit up there now and bomb through the darndest muck you ever saw and knock out a factory, a bridge, or enemy strong points and troops just a short way in front of our own lines, with no risk to our own troops."

When Weyland (he pronounces it to rhyme with Highland) speaks of improvements in air war technique, every one listens. He has had more combat experience than any other general officer in the U. S. Air Force—with his total of almost five years as a combat commander—and he guided the air war in Korea with great success almost from the beginning.

As commander of the 19th Tactical Air Command, Weyland roared across Europe with the late Gen. George S. Patton, whose Third Army was powerhousing the allied offensive.

Weyland still cherishes letters from Patton, among them one which said: "As usual we feel that the great successes achieved are the result of the unselfish cooperation and comradeship existing between the air and ground troops."

Light Rain, Snow Fall in Wide Areas

(By the Associated Press)

Light rain and snow fell in widely scattered areas from the Rockies to the Atlantic coast today but no severe cold was reported in the nation.

The warming trend of the past few days reached into New England where temperatures were 15 to 30 degrees higher than yesterday. It was 29 above at Houlton, Maine, early today, compared to 9 below yesterday.

However, some colder air moved into the Great Lakes region, dropping temperatures 7 to 15 degrees. But generally readings were above seasonal levels. It was below freezing over the Great Lakes, in New England and in sections of the Rockies.

Light snow fell in parts of New York and New England while snow mixed with rain was reported in sections of West Virginia. Rain fell in eastern Kentucky while showers hit areas of Texas and in the western Rockies. Fog was reported again today west of the Rockies. Fair weather prevailed in other sections. Highest readings were along the extreme southern border from Florida to California.

Ohio, a state of the Unite States since 1803, was officially admitted to the union in 1953 when Congress corrected a technical omission in the original legislation.

Bills in Legislature

Albany, Feb. 3 (AP)—Two Democrats propose that counties get a bigger share of state-collected motor fuel taxes, and that some of each county's split be passed on to cities and villages.

Sen. Peter J. Dalessandro and Assemblyman D-Cady Herrick, both of Albany county, introduced a measure yesterday that would increase from 10 to 15 per cent the share distributed to counties outside New York city.

Twenty per cent of each county's motor-fuel tax revenue would be distributed to cities and villages on a population basis. The funds are used for highway maintenance.

A joint legislative committee to study laws covering banking institutions was proposed by Sen. Frank S. McCullough, Rye Republican.

In a resolution, he suggested a $25,000 study by three senators and four assemblymen of laws McCullough said had been adopted "piecemeal." He said fields of banking and financial activity should be clarified to eliminate "overlapping of functions and undesirable confusion in the public mind."

A bill that would repeal a provision affecting attorneys or engineers hired by towns without a town attorney or town engineer was introduced by Assemblyman T. Eodore Hill, Jr., Westchester Republican. The limit now is $3,000 annually.

An other measure would require the education commissioner make rules for monthly inspection of school bus equipment. It was introduced by Assemblyman Jacob H. Gilbert-D, Bronx.

White marble decorations of Greek temples, now exhibited as examples of Greek culture, usually were painted in brilliant colors when they were first erected.

Dairy Promotion Pushed

Madison, Wis., (AP)—Wisconsin farmers invested $585,901 in American Dairy Association sales promotion during 1953, the ADA of Wisconsine reports. The figure was a new record. The money was raised through a voluntary checkoff of one cent per pound of butter fat produced in June and July. This year the checkoff became two cents per 100 pounds of milk, or one-half cent per pound of butterfat an o year-around basis.

Firemen See Movie On TV and Radar

Woodstock, Feb. 3 — Members and guests of the Woodstock Fire Companies, No. 1, and No. 2 of Wittenberg, were welcomed to the annual dinner by Birge Simmons, president of Company No. 1, Monday night at Deanies.

Following the dinner movies on the subject of communications, including radar and television, presented by the New York Telephone Company, were shown through the courtesy of Mervin Doremus of the Telephone Company. Piano selections were played by Fennell Franckling.

Among the guests present were Chief Joseph L. Murphy of Kingston, and Deputy Fire Chief James M. Brett, also of Kingston; Joseph Fitzsimmons, supervisor of the town of Woodstock; Chief George Haythorne, of Company No. 1; Albert Cashdollar and Reginald Lapo, both former chief and now life members of Company No. 1; Harvey I. Todd, chaplain; Barney Wells, oldest charter member of the company; Everett Cashdollar, president of Company No. 2, and the three fire commissioners, Victor Lasher, Montcena DeWitt and Arthur Stone.

Approximately 150 members and their guests attended the dinner, and a vote of thanks was given to the committee in charge of arrangements for the dinner. Serving on the committee were Douglas Franckling, Wayne Underhill and Herbert Wyman.

Motor Club Gets Its New Charter

Woodstock, Feb. 3—The charter was presented and it was announced that incorporation papers had been received from Albany, at the meeting of the Woodstock Motor Club, Sunday night, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Gardner of Saugerties. A total of 26 members attended the meeting with 10 new members taken into the club at the meeting.

It is expected that the club's insignia plaques will arrive in about two weeks, as they are now in the process of being casted. The insignias were designed by John Pike, a member of the club.

In response to a request by the club for a historian, Ed Gardner volunteered to fill the office.

Permanent Cards

Membership cards are also expected to arrive from the printers by the end of the week, and it was pointed out that they will be permanent cards to be held by the members.

Final plans were discussed for the bus trip, sponsored by the club to the International Motor Show in New York Sunday. There are still a few reservations available for the trip, but they must be obtained immediately from either Don Rothrock or Jimmy Smith, of Glenford.

Following the business meeting, a movie titled The Stylist, a picture made by General Motors, concerned with the styling of new cars.

It was announced that the club year will be designated from the first meeting in January to the first meeting of the following January.

Nomination Next

At the next meeting there will be a nomination of officers, to include president, vice president, treasurer, assistant treasurer, secretary and corresponding secretary. The meeting will be held Sunday, February 14, at 7 p. m., at the home of Amos Newcombe, at Manor Lake, Kingston.

Kaz Exhibition Is Called Interesting

Woodstock, Feb. 3—A review of the current exhibition of work by Nathaniel Kaz in New York, appeared in the New York Herald Tribune, Sunday, January 31.

"The style in which Nathaniel Kaz works," the Tribune reported, "is familiar to modern sculptors, since it invokes a free simplification of the form and silhouette which is based on the natural image and overranges reality with fanciful elaborations. As this process can become a superficial one, it is much to Mr. Kaz's credit that he keeps it sound and meaningful. . . . This is a very interesting show, indeed. consisting of fourteen pieces, in bronze, in terracotta and synthetic stone, and several drawings."

Woodstock, Feb. 3—There will be a regular monthly meeting of the Wittenberg Sportsmen's Club at the clubhouse, today at 8 p. m.

Village Notes

Woodstock, Feb. 3—Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Collings Henderson spent the weekend at their home in Bearsville.

Christian Metzger, of Bearsville, has been ill for the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Fennell Franckling celebrated their 48th wedding anniversary on February 6.

Legion Criticizes U. S. Flag Flying at Night

Woodstock, Feb. 3—A donation of $10 was voted to the March of Dimes drive at the meeting of American Legion Post 1026, last Thursday night at the Legion Hall. A contribution was also made to the American Legion rehabilitation stamp fund.

A discussion took place on the current situation of the American flag being allowed to fly during the night on the village green. It was suggested that to eliminate the improper flying of the flag that it only be raised on holidays.

During the meeting a discussion also took place on civil defense.

It was reported that Benjamin Buley, a member of the post, had returned to his home last Monday from Kingston Hospital.

Firemen See Movie On TV and Radar

Woodstock, Feb. 3 — Members and guests of the Woodstock Fire Companies, No. 1, and No. 2 of Wittenberg, were welcomed to the annual dinner by Birge Simmons, president of Company No. 1, Monday night at Deanies.

Following the dinner movies on the subject of communications, including radar and television, presented by the New York Telephone Company, were shown through the courtesy of Mervin Doremus of the Telephone Company. Piano selections were played by Fennell Franckling.

Among the guests present were Chief Joseph L. Murphy of Kingston, and Deputy Fire Chief James M. Brett, also of Kingston; Joseph Fitzsimmons, supervisor of the town of Woodstock; Chief George Haythorne, of Company No. 1; Albert Cashdollar and Reginald Lapo, both former chief and now life members of Company No. 1; Harvey I. Todd, chaplain; Barney Wells, oldest charter member of the company; Everett Cashdollar, president of Company No. 2, and the three fire commissioners, Victor Lasher, Montcena DeWitt and Arthur Stone.

Approximately 150 members and their guests attended the dinner, and a vote of thanks was given to the committee in charge of arrangements for the dinner. Serving on the committee were Douglas Franckling, Wayne Underhill and Herbert Wyman.

Motor Club Gets Its New Charter

Woodstock, Feb. 3—The charter was presented and it was announced that incorporation papers had been received from Albany, at the meeting of the Woodstock Motor Club, Sunday night, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Gardner of Saugerties. A total of 26 members attended the meeting with 10 new members taken into the club at the meeting.

It is expected that the club's insignia plaques will arrive in about two weeks, as they are now in the process of being casted. The insignias were designed by John Pike, a member of the club.

In response to a request by the club for a historian, Ed Gardner volunteered to fill the office.

Permanent Cards

Membership cards are also expected to arrive from the printers by the end of the week, and it was pointed out that they will be permanent cards to be held by the members.

Final plans were discussed for the bus trip, sponsored by the club to the International Motor Show in New York Sunday. There are still a few reservations available for the trip, but they must be obtained immediately from either Don Rothrock or Jimmy Smith, of Glenford.

Following the business meeting, a movie titled The Stylist, a picture made by General Motors, concerned with the styling of new cars.

It was announced that the club year will be designated from the first meeting in January to the first meeting of the following January.

Nomination Next

At the next meeting there will be a nomination of officers, to include president, vice president, treasurer, assistant treasurer, secretary and corresponding secretary. The meeting will be held Sunday, February 14, at 7 p. m., at the home of Amos Newcombe, at Manor Lake, Kingston.

Kaz Exhibition Is Called Interesting

Woodstock, Feb. 3—A review of the current exhibition of work by Nathaniel Kaz in New York, appeared in the New York Herald Tribune, Sunday, January 31.

"The style in which Nathaniel Kaz works," the Tribune reported, "is familiar to modern sculptors, since it invokes a free simplification of the form and silhouette which is based on the natural image and overranges reality with fanciful elaborations. As this process can become a superficial one, it is much to Mr. Kaz's credit that he keeps it sound and meaningful. . . . This is a very interesting show, indeed, consisting of fourteen pieces, in bronze, in terra-cotta and synthetic stone, and several drawings."

Woodstock, Feb. 3—There will be a regular monthly meeting of the Wittenberg Sportsmen's Club at the clubhouse, today at 8 p. m.

Village Notes

Woodstock, Feb. 3—Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Collings Henderson spent the weekend at their home in Bearsville.

Christian Metzger, of Bearsville, has been ill for the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Fennell Franckling celebrated their 48th wedding anniversary on February 6.

Legion Criticizes U. S. Flag Flying at Night

Woodstock, Feb. 3—A donation of $10 was voted to the March of Dimes drive at the meeting of American Legion Post 1026, last Thursday night at the Legion Hall. A contribution was also made to the American Legion rehabilitation stamp fund.

A discussion took place on the current situation of the American flag being allowed to fly during the night on the village green. It was suggested that to eliminate the improper flying of the flag that it only be raised on holidays.

During the meeting a discussion also took place on civil defense.

It was reported that Benjamin Buley, a member of the post, had returned to his home last Monday from Kingston Hospital.

Dance Proceeds to Promote Services

Kingston Hospital Auxiliary members, Mrs. Peter D. Corsones, left and Mrs. Robert S. Russell are shown arranging flowers to be delivered to patients. This is just one of the phases of the new volunteer service the auxiliary has organized for the comfort of patients in the hospital. Every morning and afternoon, five days a week, two volunteers perform many such services, freeing the nurses to give more nursing care.

The annual dance to provide funds for the auxiliary, will be held Saturday night at the Governor Clinton Hotel. The music for dancing will be furnished by Larry Bloom and his orchestra, who are at present playing at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York. (Freeman photo)

History of Lodge Given Auxiliary At Dinner Meeting

Golden Sunset Lodge, No. 237, ladies' auxiliary to the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, celebrated its 50th anniversary with a banquet at Judie's Thursday evening.

Following the dinner, Mrs. Ralph Gakenheimer, worthy president, gave a brief summary of the organization of the auxiliary. It was formed January 14, 1904 by Mrs. J. D. Hubbard, the first counselor, with 26 charter members. Mrs. Irving Lasher was the first president.

Mrs. Gakenheimer then welcomed and introduced Miss Margaret L. Toole, second vice grand president; Mrs. Frank Dorr, chairman, grand executive boards; and Mrs. Grace Carson, a charter member who was presented with a 50-year pin and gift.

Gifts also were presented to the grand lodge officers and to Mrs. William Lifer, retiring president.

Other guests from out of town were Mrs. Emma Callahan, worthy president, and member from Hudson Valley Lodge No. 526, Poughkeepsie.

Coach House Will Present Next Play, Harvey, for Rotary

George Betts, president of the Coach House Players, Inc., appointed Irving Rose, Richard Becker and Stanley London as members of a committee to make arrangements with James Matthews for Harvey, the next play to be presented by the group. This will be given for the Rotary Club of Kingston.

A board meeting for Monday night, and a work night at the Coach House also were announced at the meeting of the Players. The next meeting of the entire group will be held Tuesday, Feb. 9.

Following the business meeting, Bill Hawk played recordings from the play, Julius Caesar, featuring Marlon Brando. Refreshments were served by Madeline Reis and Tess Lloyd, hostesses for the evening.

Good Taste Today

By EMILY POST

(Author of Etiquette, Children Are People, etc.)

A WAY OUT

Today's first letter tells me: "When I first began working in this office, several of the girls invited me to go to lunch with them and tried to make things pleasant for me. But now I don't seem to be able to get away ever from them and I find that their interests are not mine. I would rather not lunch with them but can't seem to get out of it. What can you suggest for me to do?"

The only suggestion I can make is to say that you have something for which you have to save your lunch money, and that you are bringing your lunch from home. After a while, they will get used to not having you with them and you can later on lunch where you please without hurting their feelings.

May Bride Sing at Own Wedding?

Dear Mrs. Post: This is probably the most unusual question you have ever been asked. Is it ever possible for a bride to sing at her own wedding? If so, how could this be done and during what part of the ceremony. The bride has a beautiful voice and sings at all of the weddings in her church. There really isn't anyone else in this small town who can sing well enough and it would mean engaging a singer from another town. What is your opinion of this?

Answer: I am sorry, but I really cannot imagine a bride singing at her own wedding, and in my opinion it would be very strange.

When Receiving a Bonus

Dear Mrs. Post: When receiving a bonus from an employer in the form of a check, do you just thank him and put it away, or do you open the envelope in his presence and look at the amount?

Answer: If you are one of many in a large office, you would just say thank you and that's all. But if you are in a small company and know your employer personally, you would certainly look at it. It would indicate indifference not to do so.

Are you planning to write your wedding invitations by hand? Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail. Details on wedding invitations and announcements are included in her leaflet E-10. To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin to Dept. EP, care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, PO Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N Y.

Good Taste Today

By EMILY POST

(Author of Etiquette, Children Are People, etc.)

A WAY OUT

Today's first letter tells me: "When I first began working in this office, several of the girls invited me to go to lunch with them and tried to make things pleasant for me. But now I don't seem to be able to get away ever from them and I find that their interests are not mine. I would rather not lunch with them but can't seem to get out of it. What can you suggest for me to do?"

The only suggestion I can make is to say that you have something for which you have to save your lunch money, and that you are bringing your lunch from home. After a while, they will get used to not having you with them and you can later on lunch where you please without hurting their feelings.

May Bride Sing at Own Wedding?

Dear Mrs. Post: This is probably the most unusual question you have ever been asked. Is it ever possible for a bride to sing at her own wedding? If so, how could this be done and during what part of the ceremony. The bride has a beautiful voice and sings at all of the weddings in her church. There really isn't anyone else in this small town who can sing well enough and it would mean engaging a singer from another town. What is your opinion of this?

Answer: I am sorry, but I really cannot imagine a bride singing at her own wedding, and in my opinion it would be very strange.

When Receiving a Bonus

Dear Mrs. Post: When receiving a bonus from an employer in the form of a check, do you just thank him and put it away, or do you open the envelope in his presence and look at the amount?

Answer: If you are one of many in a large office, you would just say thank you and that's all. But if you are in a small company and know your employer personally, you would certainly look at it. It would indicate indifference not to do so.

Are you planning to write your wedding invitations by hand? Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail. Details on wedding invitations and announcements are included in her leaflet E-10. To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin to Dept. EP, care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, PO Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

Elementary School Children Exhibit Paintings at Public Library

A group of paintings and drawings by grade school youngsters, now on exhibition at the Kingston Public Library, illustrates the aesthetic and thought development in art work in grades one through six. With three or four examples in each age group, the same lesson in art is shown as executed by the lower grades and the upper, with aesthetic value present in the first as well as in the more finished paintings. Alvin Most, supervisor of art in the elementary schools, played the Stravinsky Firebird Suite, told the children the story, then asked them to paint their impression of the Firebird. By repeating this technique with Beethoven's Pastoral Symphony, Jack and the Beanstalk, and other tales, the appeal to the imagination brought forth remarkable results. Also included in this show, in the children's section of the library, are landscapes, seen from school windows, and portraits painted from life, representing the world of children. Adults are invited to view the works. Displaying their work are, left to right, Peggy Hadderman, Cathy Duffy, Daryl Anson, Marsha Powell, Joyce McElrath, Elaine Baechtle and rear, Christopher St. John. (Freeman photo)

Caribbean Cruise On Nieuw Amsterdam Is 'Perfect' Trip

Recommended for all who want to escape the snow and storms for a two-week period is the Caribbean cruise aboard the Holland liner, Nieuw Amsterdam. This information comes directly from Mrs. Helen Davenport, whose suntan and good spirits stem from visiting the native ports and sights of the region, in a climate for silks and cottons.

Mr. and Mrs. George Davenport joined the Pan American Medical Association in order to take this particular cruise which had been sold out to members only. Mrs. Davenport lists as highlights, receptions which they attended, along with the MD's, for Fulgencio Batista, President of Cuba, and Mrs. Batista, at the royal palace in Havana, and for Rafael L. Trujillo, President of the Dominican Republic, at the royal palace in Ciudad Trujillo.

Superhighway Over Andes

Their first stop was La Guaira, Venezuela, where they sang the praises of the "autopista", a superhighway over the Andes, four to six lanes wide, with two, mile-long tunnels, policed at both ends, with daylight lighting. Caracas, at the end of the superhighway, boasted Parisian gowns starting at $400, but fashionable Italian imports more reasonably priced. The modernistic architecture, wrought iron work on outside staircases, and the riotous colors of the vines and flowers were other impressions of this section.

Of special note was the Circulo Militaire, in Caracas "one of the most beautiful clubs in the world." In an outside dining room under the stars, facing a terraced mountain spotlighted with colored lights, tropical flowers along the walks, spicy native food was served to the accompaniment of two orchestras. In the vividly decorated indoor theatre in the Circulo, the Davenports watched the Retablo de Maravillas, native Indian battles transformed into dances with authentic costumes.

St. Thomas for Shopping

Stopping next at St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands, the Davenports found answers to their shopping problems with a choice of Italian bags and jewelry, fabrics from Africa and India, Chinese handcarved ivory fans, and enormous straw hats. In San Juan, Puerto Rico, they joined the medical group to tour the hospitals, the University of Puerto Rico, and the library, were favorably impressed by the residential section, the ultra-modern Caribe-Hilton Hotel, a weathered old fort, and the Grecian-style lecture room at the Medical College.

Following a stopover at Ciudad Trujillo, Dom. Rep., and the aforementioned address by the president, the Davenports spent three days in Cuba. They explored shops with imported silks from France, Italy and Switzerland, and the narrow streets of Havana, ducking into doorways when cars passed.

Fashions From Continent

Sunshine and good weather were everywhere, with cotton clothing, sun glasses and straw hats approved sightseeing attire. Mrs. Davenport noticed that the native women in the island were dressed in black, this being their winter season, instead of bright colors. Also noted were high fashion ensembles from the continent, for dinner and evening, and simple coiffures, to set off large hats.

With nothing but praise for the service and cruise aboard the Nieuw Amsterdam, Mrs. Davenport said they would definitely "like to go back again, very soon," to the sunny Caribbean islands.

Social Service Exchange Would Help Welfare Agencies

Miss Delight Millspaugh spoke to the regular meeting of the Junior League of Kingston, describing the setting up of a social service exchange in a community, the purpose being to present duplication by the various agencies doing welfare work.

An exchange such as she described, she said, would aid these agencies by providing a complete file of all available information on every case history. The client would benefit also by receiving the best services possible provided by the public and private agencies. Speaking as a professional social worker, presently in the Orange county Child Welfare Department, Miss Millspaugh concluded, "an exchange is the most useful tool a community can offer its professional workers."

Mrs. John Roberts announced that new mattress covers have been provided for all the beds in the loan closet, and that she was about to purchase two walkers and two more boards for the beds.

The cheer chain announced they were going to the Home for the Aged, the end of the month. Mrs. Warren Knaust followed with a report of the Saugerties Cheer Chain, and told of their great appreciation for the gifts of candy and food by a number of Saugerties merchants which enabled the group to serve about 400 patients in the several sanitariums and nursing homes there.

Mrs. Sherwood Davis, president, closed the meeting with the announcement that the name of Mrs. Gifford Beal had been entered as a candidate for regional director for Region 2.

The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Peter Corsones, with Mrs. Jay LeFever, Jr., and Mrs. Robert Matthews as hostesses.

From Trinity College he went to Berkeley Divinity School in New Haven, Conn., where he was graduated cum laude in 1951 with a Bachelor of Sacred Theology.

From 1946 to 1951 Father Brieant served as organist and choirmaster of Trinity Church, Portland, Conn.

Ordained in 1951

He was ordained deacon in June, 1951, and priest in December, 1951, by the Rt. Rev. Horace W. B. Donegan, bishop of New York.

He also holds an associate certificate of the American Guild of Organists (AAGO), earned in 1941, and is a licentiate of Trinity College of Music, London, (LTCL) earned in 1950.

During his stay in Stone Ridge he has also studied under the New York State War Service Scholarship at Union Theological Seminary School of Sacred Music in New York. He is working toward a master's degree in sacred music.

governor to replace Frank C. Moore, who resigned last Sept. 30.

In other developments in the capitol yesterday:

1. George P. Monaghan, just sworn in as the sole "czar" of the state's racket-infested harness racing industry, promised to crack down on the scandals "with thorough vigor and effectiveness."

2. Two Democratic lawmakers called for a $500,000 appropriation to build a state television station for experimental educational broadcasts.

In less than an hour yesterday, the Assembly gave final legislative approval to a bill setting up a one-man harness racing commission, the Senate confirmed Dewey's appointment of Monaghan to the post, the governor signed the "czar" bill and Monaghan took his oath of office.

Replaces Commission

Vested with sweeping powers to govern all phases of harness racing, Monaghan replaces the three-member, unsalaried harness racing commission. He will be paid $18,490 a year plus $3,000 "in lieu of expenses" for a term running until July 1, 1961.

Monaghan said in a statement that it would be his aim to make harness racing "merit the same supreme confidence in its integrity that the American people have bestowed on baseball."

"It is my intention, with the authority conferred on the commissioner by the new law, to administer this sport with thorough vigor and effectiveness," he declared.

The new "czar" a Democrat and former police commissioner of New York city, declined to say when the 1954 harness racing season would open. It is in his power to fix meeting dates for tracks licensed for parimutuel betting.

Monaghan said it would be "pure speculation" to assume that the races would begin by April 15, the opening date in past years. But he promised to start work "immediately" on assigning racing dates.

Got 'Free Hand'

He said the governor "gave me a free hand in controlling the tracks." If necessary, the commissioner added, he might grant conditional licenses to some or all of the tracks to get the season underway while investigation of the sport continues.

Upon signing the bill, Dewey said in a memorandum that the new law was "the first of a series of measures designed to broaden the powers" of the state over harness racing. The governor did not elaborate.

The educational TV proposal, introduced by Sen. William Rosenblatt of Brooklyn and Assemblyman Sidney H. Asch of the Bronx, came on the heels of Dewey's own recommendation.

In a special message to the Legislature, the governor proposed that the Board of Regents be empowered to charter non-profit groups to build and operate educational TV station, under Regents' supervision.

Asch said in the Assembly that Dewey's proposal was "vapid," "ineffectual" and a "whitewash."

Backing up the Democratic bill, part of the party's legislative program, Sen. Francis J. Mahoney and Assemblyma Enugene F. Bannigan, the minority leaders, said in a joint statement:

"The best way to study the potentials of the new medium is to set up one pilot station and see it in action."

now it's up to the Senate to decide.

6. Declared, in reference to the Berlin Big Four Conference, that Secretary of State Dulles is doing a good job and has his full confidence. As for Dulles' talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov on the President's atomic pool proposal, Eisenhower said it's still too early to tell how the matter may turn out.

7. Said he has received no detailed report on the case of Soviet agent who disappeared in Tokyo and doesn't even have any information as to whether the man, Yuri Alexandrovich Rastovorov, is in American custody.

Reports on Technicians

8. Confirmed reports the United States has air technicians in Indochina, as it has, the President added, in many other countries of the world. The units are entirely technical and are not fighting units. He said.

9. Asserted something has to be done about the cost of butter before that commodity prices itself out of the market, but he advanced no specific solution to the problem.

A newsman told Eisenhower the government soon must decide what price it will pay for surplus butter under the price support program. He asked the President whether there are any plans to reduce the price which it has been paying.

The President replied he does not know about that, but he added that we can't keep pricing butter out of the market.

10. Laughed off an attempt to find out how he takes his coffee—whether with cream, sugar or black—but added that he is a great lover of the beverage, as most soldiers are.

He repeated he is most interested in getting the price of coffee reduced.

Arbor Day

Editor, The Freeman

Twenty five years after Nebraska became a state the first ARBOR DAY was celebrated on April 10, 1872 by planting about 1,000,000 trees in the state. The man responsible for the planting of this great number of trees was the Honorable J. Sterling Morton then commissioner of agriculture in Nebraska. Later he was secretary of agriculture in the second term cabinet of President Grover Cleveland. Nebraska has made Arbor Day a holiday and in honor of the founder has fixed the date of April twenty second, birthday of Mr. Morton, as the day to celebrate.

"A million trees" sounds formidable but in Nebraska it was only 14 (fourteen) to the square mile of land area. Curiously Arbor Day is observed in every state in the Union but is a legal holiday in but four. In the remaining it is usual for the governor to designate the date which may be in late April or early May. Then of course the authorities in cities, towns and villages go into action.

Great credit is due the school children of Kingston who have celebrated and kept alive our ARBOR DAY. Why not expand the good work and have all our people help make Arbor Day this year one to be long remembered? Fourteen trees to the square mile in Kingston is just a few more than a hundred. There are many suitable spots available and think what it will mean fifty years from now. The Common Council is on record and I feel sure that the council would give its aid and support to a "Tree Planting" this Arbor Day.

Sincerely,
A. S. HICKEY

89 More Listed as Dead

Washington, Feb. 3 (AP) — The army today listed 89 more soldiers, previously classed as missing in action in Korea, who have been determined to be dead. The army makes a determination of death where supporting evidence is available, usually from eyewitnesses, that a man has died even though his body has not been recovered and identified. The army said most of the deaths were determined to have taken place while the men were prisoners.

Eisenhowers Enjoy Services Party

By RUTH COWAN

Washington, Feb. 3 (AP)—President Eisenhower didn't have to say—as he did—"I'm having fun" at last night's White House reception. His grin made it obvious.

The occasion was the armed services reception bringing together many men with whom Eisenhower had served during his 38 years in the army.

The Eisenhowers, he in evening clothes and she in delicate black lace over pink, stood in the blue room, as is the custom, to shake hands with their guests.

After the last of nearly 600 guests had gone through the receiving line, aides lined up to form a passageway through which the Eisenhowers usually move toward the elevator which carries them to their second floor living quarters.

The aides stood at proper attention, but the President and his wife had gone into the state dining room where guests were still chatting. The Eisenhowers paused repeatedly to greet old friends again.

This was the fourth of five official receptions at the White House this season and the first attended by the Vice President and Mrs. Nixon—she in pink net embroidered in silver.

Invitations went to two star generals and two star admirals and above and their wives and to the secretaries of the army, navy and air force, undersecretaries and assistant secretaries and their wives, members of the Senate and House Armed Services Committees and their wives.

The only captain and colonels were the heads of the WAVES, WACS and women in the marines.

Red Hook Man Named

Albany, Feb. 3 (AP)—Gov. Dewey today appointed Robert G. Greig of Red Hook to the State Soil Conservation Committee. Greig was nominated by the State Farm Bureau Federation. His term will expire April 1, 1958.

Tallamy Says . . .

500 million and now 800 million," they added.

The authority plans to ask the Legislature soon for additional funds to finance a 72-mile extension, and three shorter spurs off the main route.

Two spurs appearing to be more costly are the 14-mile New England section between Rye and Port Chester, and the 20-mile route between Buffalo and Niagara Falls. Their routes go through heavily populated areas.

The route from Buffalo to Suffern is expected to be completed by the end of this year. The route from Suffern to New York is due for completion in mid-1955. The first toll section, 110 miles between Rochester and Verona, is scheduled for opening next summer.

A tourist was enjoying the wonders of California as pointed out by a native.

Tourist—What beautiful grapefruit. (as they passed through a grove of citrus-trees).

Californian—Oh, those lemons are a bit small owing to a comparatively bad season.

Tourist—What are those enormous blossoms? (little bit farther out).

Californian—Just a patch of dandelions.

Presently they reached the Sacramento River.

Tourist—Ah, some one's radiator is leaking.

Neighbor—Did I bring your lawn mower back last month?

Indignant Householder — No, you did not.

Neighbor—Now what'll I do? I wanted to borrow it again.

He who stands high in his own estimation is still a long way from the top.

P. T. Barnum brought his show to Washington in Civil War days, and among his chief attractions were them idgets, General Tom Thumb and Admiral Nutt. On seeing them, President Lincoln remarked to Barnum:

Consider Abraham Lincoln. He looked sad, but he was friendly and kind. He was awkward in appearance and posture, but he had the capacity to exert great physical effort. He became one of this nation's greatest leaders.

A youngster whose love of history was not any too intense expressed his opinion on the inside cover of his history book as follows: "In case of fire, please throw this in."

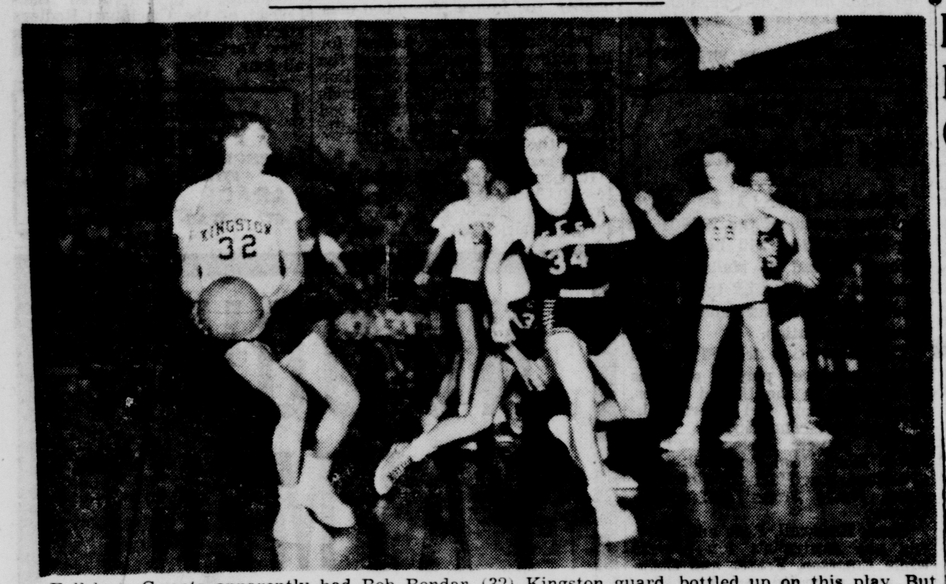
Blues Win Squeaker at Monticello 69-67; NFA Routs Middies



Fallsburg Comets apparently had Bob Bondar (32) Kingston guard, bottled up on this play. But the rebound ace connected with a one-hander from outside last night at the field house. Fallsburg's (34) Dave Kwartler is in front of him. John Godwin (28) lingers under KHS basket.

Kingston High discovered last night that, if it wins the 1953-54 DUSO basketball pennant, the job will have to be done without outside help.

While the lethargic Maroons were whipping Fallsburg Centrals, 70-41, at the Kate Walton field house, Poughkeepsie High escaped a crucial defeat by two points at Monticello and Newburgh Academy burst the Middletown bubble on the Middle boards, 67-48.

Sam Kalloch's Blues got a tremendous scare before Don Dahowski's deuce in the last 20 seconds resolved a 69-67 victory over Mendy Ringel and the inspired Monticello quintet.

And quite typically, Coach Kalloch found himself involved in a slight rhubarb with Ken Somerville, Monticello athletic director, when the electric scoreboard clock jammed at the precise moment Dahowski hit with his winning basket. After a heated argument, the contest was finished with an old-style timepiece.

Ringel Scores 29

Ringel, acclaimed by Sullivan county fans as a sure-fire All-DUSO, racked up 29 points to spark a second half rally by the mountaineers. He was individual scoring leader for the night, two points better than Dahowski's 27 and sent his average for four games against the Kingston-Newburgh-Poughkeepsie near the 25-point mark.

Kiasmen Off Key

It's difficult to fault a team that wins by 29 points, but Coach G. Warren Kias didn't relax or smile last night until Bucky Miller fired a one-hander at the 4:03 mark in the final period.

There was never any serious doubt about the outcome, as Kingston led all the way, but the Maroon mentor and local rooters sighed with relief when the final buzzer sounded. This was a bad ball game to get out of the team's system and stay in the win column for the tenth straight time this season.

Bezemer Scores 18

Dick Bezemer opened with another first period burst with 10 points and had 13 at the half when Kingston led 32-24. But the opposing center, Marty Van Vliet was also hot in the first half with five baskets.

Bezemer finished with 18 points and Skip Brodhead and John Godwin each hooped 14. A 21-point fourth quarter in which seven players figured in the scoring turned the game into a rout and revealed the awesome difference between the halves and have-nots of this year's DUSO League.

Fallsburg stayed tenaciously within four or five points until Bob Bondar's running bank shot sent Kingston ahead 30-21 in the second period. Bezemer and Brodhead ran it to 41-30 in the third period and in the last minute Bondar hit with a one-hander and Bezemer connected with a three-point play to end the period 46-30.

When Bucky Miller swished a line drive one-hander through at 4:03 of the fourth, Coach Kias relaxed and smiled and figured the Maroons (leading by 24) were in. Thereafter the only important development was a free throw by Joe Markle for Kingston's 70th point. This brought the cheerleaders of their seats in high glee.

Williams Eclipsed

Mickey Burkoski, NFA's All-DUSO center, ran Middletown's highly touted Bill Williams into the boards with 27 points, Williams, restricted to nine points, fouled out early in the fourth period. His substitute, George Nye, and Nino Marcello each scored 10. Billy Huber hit 10 for NFA.

Liberty High sent Ellenville to the bottom of the loop by defeating the Ulsterites, 55-50. The Ellies are host to Kingston Friday night.

Detroit's Ward Goes Big Time

Detroit, Feb. 3 (AP) — After months of local buildup, Detroiter Moses Ward goes "big time" tonight when he meets hard-hitting Willie Troy in an Olympia Stadium 10-rounder.

A serious-minded 21-year-old Negro whose idol is Joe Louis, Ward will be making his first appearance before the national television audience (10 p. m., EST).

For months his manager, Peter Marudas, has been screaming that the top middleweights were avoiding his fighter. Ward's record of 17-2-2 was good, Marudas claimed, and he wanted a fight with someone, anyone.

Troy just isn't someone, anyone. He's the seventh ranking middleweight contender and his sock has accounted for 25 victories in 26 starts—19 of them by knockouts. Hailing from Washington, D. C., he's also a 21-year-old Negro.

Troy has been floored only once, by Holly Mims, who handed him his only setback. Since then, the 6-foot-1 Troy has knocked out six straight opponents—including Lee Sala, Randy Sandy and Tuzo Portuguez.

50 Club and Accord Take YMCA 'B' League Games

The 50 Club and Accord won squeakers in last night's YMCA "B" League basketball games. The 50 Club withstood a last quarter rally by Greco Brothers to win, 59-58, while Accord came from behind to nip Angel Juniors, 41-40.

Powered by Big Sal Misasi's 22 markers, Greco Brothers fell behind the 50 Club, 38-30, after leading 16-15 at the quarter. They kept pecking away at the 50 Club edge in the last two periods but time ran out on them.

John Burris tied Misasi's 22 points for the 50 Club. Jim Woods aided the winners with 12, Don Gardeski and Mike Tiano scored 10 apiece for Greco and Chris Rienzo fired 11.

Angels Collapse

The Angel Juniors led Accord all the way, 14-3 at the period, before going into a tailspin in the fourth quarter of a defensive battle.

Harrison Marcus was the Accord scoring star with 16 points. Ed Lindhurst and Don Schroder rimmed 11 each.

Giants Hint More Deals in Making; Sign Collegian

New York, Feb. 3 (AP)—The New York baseball Giants, berated in recent seasons by their fans and foes alike for failing to come up with new faces, have added five new players in 48 hours and today were reported in the market for still more.

The latest addition to the Polo Grounds contingent is third baseman Joe Amalfitano, a bonus rookie from Loyola University of Los Angeles. Hailed as one of the brightest prospects to come out of Southern California in a decade, the college flash is right handed all the way.

Amalfintano was signed late yesterday, just a day after the Giants completed their biggest deal in three years—sending Bobby Thomson and Sam Calderone to Milwaukee for pitchers Don Liddle and Johnny Antonelli, catcher Ebba St. Claire and infielder Billy Klaus.

One source, who predicted the Thomson trade, suggested the Giants were actively in the market for another righthanded pitcher and were eying the Cincinnati staff. Another informant claimed the club has talked business recently with at least three other National League teams besides Milwaukee and that there are definite possibilities of at least one more deal for pitching and catching strength.

The Giants signed their other Thompson yesterday — the one with the "p" in his name. Hank Thompson, who probably will be their third baseman, got a raise to $15,000, up about $3,000.

Jayvees Rally to Beat Comet Yearlings, 45-29

High school Jayvees had a rare experience last night. They had to come from behind on their home court to defeat Fallsburg JVs, 45-29, in the preliminary at the field house.

Coach John Gilligan's cagers trailed 13-18 when they walked off the floor for the intermission. The Comet yearlings had restricted them to four points, their lowest scoring session of the season, in the first quarter.

Marty Kantrowitz, who led with 13 points, spearheaded a third period drive that regained the lead, 27-22, with five points.

The Maroons outscored the mountaineers, 18-7, in the stretch period and had nine different players contribute to the boxscore. It was their ninth win against one loss.

Al Long scored 9 points and Neil Keyser hit six for the winners. Irv Krutman paced Fallsburg with 13 points and Jack Wilson rimmed 11.

Blues Win Squeaker at Monticello 69-67; NFA Routs Middies

Fallsburg Comets apparently had Bob Bondar (32) Kingston guard, bottled up on this play. But the rebound ace connected with a one-hander from outside last night at the field house. Fallsburg's (34) Dave Kwartler is in front of him. John Godwin (28) lingers under KHS basket.

Kingston High discovered last night that, if it wins the 1953-54 DUSO basketball pennant, the job will have to be done without outside help.

While the lethargic Maroons were whipping Fallsburg Centrals, 70-41, at the Kate Walton field house, Poughkeepsie High escaped a crucial defeat by two points at Monticello and Newburgh Academy burst the Middletown bubble on the Middie boards, 67-48.

Sam Kalloch's Blues got a tremendous scare before Don Dahowski's deuce in the last 20 seconds resolved a 69-67 victory over Mendy Ringel and the inspired Monticello quintet.

And quite typically, Coach Kalloch found himself involved in a slight rhubarb with Ken Somerville, Monticello athletic director, when the electric scoreboard clock jammed at the precise moment Dahowski hit with his winning basket. After a heated argument, the contest was finished with an old-style timepiece.

Ringel Scores 29

Ringel, acclaimed by Sullivan county fans as a sure-fire All-DUSO, racked up 29 points to spark a second half rally by the mountaineers. He was individual scoring leader for the night, two points better than Dahowski's 27 and sent his average for four games against the Kingston-Newburgh-Poughkeepsie near the 25-point mark.

Kiasmen Off Key

It's difficult to fault a team that wins by 29 points, but Coach G. Warren Kias didn't relax or smile last night until Bucky Miller fired a one-hander at the 4:03 mark in the final period.

There was never any serious doubt about the outcome, as Kingston led all the way, but the Maroon mentor and local rooters sighed with relief when the final buzzer sounded. This was a bad ball game to get out of the team's system and stay in the win column for the tenth straight time this season.

Bezemer Scores 18

Dick Bezemer opened with another first period burst with 10 points and had 13 at the half when Kingston led 32-24. But the opposing center, Marty Van Vliet was also hot in the first half with five baskets.

Bezemer finished with 18 points and Skip Brodhead and John Godwin each hooped 14. A 21-point fourth quarter in which seven players figured in the scoring turned the game into a rout and revealed the awesome difference between the halves and have-nots of this year's DUSO League.

Fallsburg stayed tenaciously within four or five points until Bob Bondar's running bank shot sent Kingston ahead 30-21 in the second period. Bezemer and Brodhead ran it to 41-30 in the third period and in the last minute Bondar hit with a one-hander and Bezemer connected with a three-point play to end the period 46-30.

When Bucky Miller swished a line drive one-hander through at 4:03 of the fourth, Coach Kias relaxed and smiled and figured the Maroons (leading by 24) were in. Thereafter the only important development was a free throw by Joe Markle for Kingston's 70th point. This brought the cheerleaders of their seats in high glee.

Williams Eclipsed

Mickey Burkoski, NFA's All-DUSO center, ran Middletown's highly touted Bill Williams into the boards with 27 points, Williams, restricted to nine points, fouled out early in the fourth period. His substitute, George Nye, and Nino Marcello each scored 10. Billy Huber hit 10 for NFA.

Liberty High sent Ellenville to the bottom of the loop by defeating the Ulsterites, 55-50. The Ellies are host to Kingston Friday night.

Jayvees Rally to Beat Comet Yearlings, 45-29

High school Jayvees had a rare experience last night. They had to come from behind on their home court to defeat Fallsburg JVs, 45-29, in the preliminary at the field house.

Coach John Gilligan's cagers trailed 13-18 when they walked off the floor for the intermission. The Comet yearlings had restricted them to four points, their lowest scoring session of the season, in the first quarter.

Marty Kantrowitz, who led with 13 points, spearheaded a third period drive that regained the lead, 27-22, with five points.

The Maroons outscored the mountaineers, 18-7, in the stretch period and had nine different players contribute to the boxscore. It was their ninth win against one loss.

Al Long scored 9 points and Neil Keyser hit six for the winners. Irv Krutman paced Fallsburg with 13 points and Jack Wilson rimmed 11.

Felix Forgets Everything but Scoring, Which May Earn Him 'New Mikan' Tag

As owner of the struggling Baltimore Bullets, Clair Bee keeps a constant eye on expenses.

As a coach, the old Long Island University maestro is considering laying out an extra salary for a bodyguard to make sure Ray Felix shows up in the proper city at the right time.

"Felix forgets everything," says Bee. "He's always missing some part of his uniform, leaves things like pants and shoes at home."

But Not the Baskets

The one thing Felix doesn't forget is to stretch his 6-11 frame toward the other guy's basket and stick in a soft shot on an average of nine times a game.

Felix is the recruit phenomenon of the National Basketball Association, the player many are pointing to as George Mikan's successor as the professionals' big shot.

"I don't know whether you can go that far, but you certainly will see a reasonable facsimile in about two years," asserts Bee.

Right now, Felix is rough enough. In the first 40 games, he was fourth in scoring statistics, with 836 points. He collected 504 rebounds to place himself behind only Harry Gallatin of the Knickerbockers, Fort Wayne's Larry Foust and the Lakers' Mikan in this department.

Is Rapidly Developing

Felix, lanky New Yorker, is rapidly developing into full maturity as a player. Despite his size, he has agility. In action, he moves like a basketball player, not a goon. He lopes down court on offense in floor-board-eating strides. On defense, he moves with a quick back-pedaling stride, used by little men, as a rule.

Felix has long and loose arms which seem to hang somewhere around his knees and look like two dark flagpoles when he puts them over his head for a shot.

In the pivot, he moves from side to side with the ball. His ham hands capably control even the sharpest pass. With the ball, he fakes, then turns for a soft scoring jump shot—or, as he now moves, goes underneath for a layup.

He knows enough to give the ball back, as they say, if too closely guarded.

Victim of Scandal

Felix, 22, was a member of the Long Island tragedy team of 1949-50 which was drilled by Bee. It left him bewildered. LIU abandoned collegiate basketball, but Felix remained there while losing two years of experience.

Felix doesn't mention the scandal except to speak of Sherman White,. a. 6-7. All-America.. "I learned more from him than anybody," he recalls. "A lot of the stuff is helping me plenty up here."

Celtics Annex Playoff Berth In Rec Junior

Celtics of the Recreation Junior League assured themselves of a playoff berth last night by whipping the Salvation Army, 61-53, at the George Washington gym.

With Bill Fitzgerald turning in another fine performance, the Celtics led from the opening tap. They were in front, 32-24, at intermission time.

Fitzgerald hit with 25 points, including one free throw, as the Celtics won their sixth victory in nine starts to join Maines Sport Shop and Esposito Cleaners in the playoff bracket.

The fourth spot will be contested between Kingston Preps (5-3) and Dawkins Nationals (5-4). These teams meet tonight. Espositos still face trouble but they are expected to win over the Preps and Salvation Army to keep their spot.

Playoffs for the fourth position will be staged Monday night, if necessary.

Noel Bonacci and Joe Pino helped Fitzgerald in the Celtics triumph with 13 points apiece. Chase led the winners with 20. Richie Nagele hit 13 and Frank Fiore had 11.

Bevo Francis Scores 113 To Boost All-Time High

New York, Feb. 3 (AP)—To the hills, men, Bevo's back tossing basketballs all over the place!

Bevo Francis, constable of Raccoon township, Gallia County, Ohio, who also plays basketball for Rio Grande College, today had boosted the all-time college scoring record for a single game—an incredible 113 points.

The statisticians won't have to change the name in the record book, just the figure. Bevo also owned the old mark of 84 points. Bill Mikvy of Temple set the major college record of 73 in 1951.

Bevo collected 38 field goals and 37 free throws last night while leading his Rio Grande quintet to a 134-91 victory over Hillsdale (Mich.) College.

In 20 games, Bevo has scored 1042 points, for an average of 52.1 per game, exactly on a par with his last season's production which he finished with a grand total of 1954 points in 39 games.

But all his records were tossed out by the NCAA—including a single game scoring feat of 116 points—because the opposition included too many two-year colleges. This year, Coach Newt Oliver lined up 25 opponents, including 24 four-year colleges.

"I guess I'm the luckiest guy in the world," Bevo told a newsman after the game. "I wanted to have a night like this because of what happened last year. I never cared much about points before, but I really did want to break 100 some time this year. It seemed like I couldn't miss. And those guys who kept feeding me the ball are the greatest bunch of players in the world."

489 Against Seniors

The performance gave Bevo 929 points for 19 games against senior colleges, an average of 48.9 per game. He needs only 41 points in five remaining games to match Johnny O'Brien's single season record of 970 points.

Hillsdale Coach Ray Null called Francis "without a doubt the greatest natural shot I have ever seen." He got 43 of his 113 points in the first half.

While Bevo and his buddies were stealing the thunder, Kentucky cemented its position as the top team in the country by rolling over po' Georgia Tech 99-48 for its 14th triumph without a setback.

21 For Seattle

Sixth-ranking Seattle, which lost its opening game of the season, now possesses the longest winning streak. The Chieftains won their 21st straight by downing Pacific Lutheran 82-64. Western Kentucky, which was idle, shows 20 straight victories without a defeat.

La Salle, No. 9 in the weekly Associated Press poll of sports writers and sportscasters, had its troubles for a half, but finished up with a 78-51 decision over Dickinson.

Holy Cross, 10th in the nation, edged Boston College 82-77 on the wings of a 26-point rally in the fourth period.

Colorado scored an upset by thrashing Kansas 70-62. The defeat was the first of the season in the Big Seven race for the Jayhawks.

In other major action, Pitt upset Georgetown 89-73; Princeton toppled Temple 68-62; Loyola of New Orleans surprised Dayton 78-68; Niagara polished off Syracuse 90-70; South Carolina coasted over Davidson 96-73; Oregon thumped Washington State 66-51 and College of Pacific went three overtimes to beat San Francisco 76-70.

(Editor's Note: This column was written before last night's game in which Mendy Ringel scored 29 points against Poughkeepsie.)

A young Monticello high school reporter with a keen sense of basketball values takes us to task for omitting the name of Monticello High's Mendy Ringel in a recent survey of early-season All-DUSO potentials.

The young reporter for the Monticello Evening News, with the impressive name of Melvin Robert Greenfield, forwards some substantial credentials in behalf of the high-scoring Monticello forward.

The earlier list was not intended to be all-inclusive but was designed more specifically to point out that quite a rhubarb migh develop if, for instance, Newburgh adherents assumed that Mickey "The Marvel" Burkoski was a shoo-in for the center position on the 1953-54 dream team.

Mention was made of Burkoski, Dick Bezemer of Kingston and Bill Williams of Middletown as topnotch pivot men. Maybe, by season's end, it will require a Solomon to choose among the three. Past performances and reputations go into the trash can. The issue will be decided strictly on the merits of the 1953-54 campaign.

Other names like Skip Brodhead of Kingston; Gary Mendez and Don Dahowski of Poughkeepsie, Harold Kaplan of NFA were tossed about with no intention of finality. By March 2 many factor will have changed many things, many opinions.

Greenfield points out that it is very tough for a player on a small school to make the All-DUSO. He mentions Aaron Podhurst of Fallsburg who made the grade in 1952-53. His statement is not correct in its entirety. The DUSO writers never have permitted the size of a school to enter into the picture. Basketball, after all, is the one sport where a school has and generally gets an even break in all-all selections.

"I make Ringel my All-DUSO choice, "says Greenfield and proceeds to back up his statement with eye-catching statistics. "Ringel is an exceptional clutch player," he goes on, "is a fine rebounder and has the ability to play (and has) every position on the court."

Against the Big Three (Kingston, Poughkeepsie and Newburgh), Ringel averaged 23 points. He scored 21 against Kingston, 22 against Poughkeepsie and harvest 26 in the Newburgh game. Not many players in the DUSO can match that performance.

"In the important contests, he was there with the necessary scoring punch, despite the fact we dropped all three encounters," continues Greenfield. "Although he is only 5 feet 11¾ inches tall, he has fared exceptionally well under both boards (offense and defense) against taller competition like Bezemer, Burkowski, Mendez, Monty Stickles and Williams."

The young reporter puts heavy emphasis on Ringel's all-round ability, pointing out that the Monticello ace takes over Marty Schwartz's spot in the backcourt when the latter fouls out. He takes over the job of helping bring the ball into offensive territory. In the case of a smaller man guarding him, moves into the center slot from which he can score almost as well as he can from the outside, says Greenfield.

"I would be very pleased if you would make it your business to give him a plug in your paper," the letter goes on. "When we played Newburgh, Bo Gill didn't say a thing about him even though he outscored Burkoski, 26-24, and Burkoski guarded him! (We double-teamed Burkoski but in his case that didn't help much).

The statistics are there and the case Ringel has been well presented. It remains to be seen if the DUSO sports writers are sufficiently impressed to award him a first team berth. As for the plug, well, young man, there it is.

Ailing Knee Sends Mantle to Hospital

Springfield, Mo., Feb. 3 (AP)—Mickey Mantle was back in the hospital again today with his ailing knee but the New York Yankee outfielder expects to be in top shape by the time spring practice rolls around.

Dr. Dan Yancey, Mickey's surgeon, said the Yankee star will be able to report for spring training in Florida next month.

Some tricky players like to make a psychic bid right over an opponent's takeout double. When today's hand was played, declarer thought that perhaps West was trying such a stunt to talk him out of the spade suit.

Actually, West had a pretty good spade holding and he pounced on three spades with a loud and emphatic double. In spite of West's confidence, South decided to stay put on the theory that this was as good a game contract as any.

West opened the ten of hearts and East won with the ace. East might have done better if he had continued hearts, but he wanted to do something effective with what he knew was his only entry. East therefore returned the queen of diamonds.

When the queen of diamonds held, East continued with a low diamond, and declarer's ten forced out West's ace. West shifted back to hearts and South was in with the king.

South had already lost a heart and two diamonds and had to find a way to limit the trump loss to one trick. This would tax the resources of most players, but it was no trouble at all to Fred Berger, of Natchez, Miss., who played the Southhand.

Fred led the nine of spades to test out the trump situation. West covered with the ten and dummy won with the jack. When East discarded a heart, Berger shuddered slightly but went on with his task.

Declarer cashed the king of clubs and then took two more clubs in his own hand. He next cashed the king of diamonds, reducing West to his four trumps.

When Berger continued with his last diamond, West ruffed with the seven of spades to force out dummy's ace. Declarer then led the queen of clubs from dummy and ruffed with the six of spades.

West could over-ruff with the eight of spades but then had to lead away from the queen-four. It didn't matter which card West led, of course, since declarer was bound to make the rest with dummy's five of spades and his own king.

Who would have dreamed that the five of spades would turn out to be so important a card?

Blackout Imposed

Saigon, Indochina, Feb. 3 (AP)—The French high command imposed a blackout today on information from northern Laos, where a division of the Communist-led Vietminh is moving on the royal capital of Luang Prabang. Last official reports before the clampdown said French forces screening the capital had pulled back along the Nam Hou river "according to plan" while French bombers and fighters pounded the advancing rebels.

To Share in Profits

Rochester, N. H., Feb. 3 (AP)—City workers, credited by Mayor John Shaw with helping pile up a $55,000 surplus in the municipal treasury, are going to get "profit sharing" pay hikes. The City Council voted last night to reward the 75 employes with $1 to $2 weekly raises. The mayor said the efficiency of city workers was a big factor in bringing about the surplus.

Gives 105th Pint

Philadelphia, Feb. 3 (AP)—Forty-year-old Ira J. Russell, who maintains he keeps in good health by giving blood, donated his 105th pint to the Red Cross blood bank yesterday. "I was on crutches suffering from rheumatism 20 years ago when a doctor suggested I give blood," Russell said. "A little while later, I threw the crutches away. Believe it or not, I've been in perfect health since." The 205-pound donor, who operates his own scrap business in nearby Salford, donates a pint of blood about every eight weeks.

Detroit, Feb. 3 (AP)—Municipal bus drivers want parking facilities enlarged around terminals. They want to drive to work, because they say the transportation system is too slow.

Some tricky players like to make a psychic bid right over an opponent's takeout double. When today's hand was played, declarer thought that perhaps West was trying such a stunt to talk him out of the spade suit.

Actually, West had a pretty good spade holding and he pounced on three spades with a loud and emphatic double. In spite of West's confidence, South decided to stay put on the theory that this was as good a game contract as any.

West opened the ten of hearts and East won with the ace. East might have done better if he had continued hearts, but he wanted to do something effective with what he knew was his only entry. East therefore returned the queen of diamonds.

When the queen of diamonds held, East continued with a low diamond, and declarer's ten forced out West's ace. West shifted back to hearts and South was in with the king.

South had already lost a heart and two diamonds and had to find a way to limit the trump loss to one trick. This would tax the resources of most players, but it was no trouble at all to Fred Berger, of Natchez, Miss., who played the Southhand.

Fred led the nine of spades to test out the trump situation. West covered with the ten and dummy won with the jack. When East discarded a heart, Berger shuddered slightly but went on with his task.

Declarer cashed the king of clubs and then took two more clubs in his own hand. He next cashed the king of diamonds, reducing West to his four trumps.

When Berger continued with his last diamond, West ruffed with the seven of spades to force out dummy's ace. Declarer then led the queen of clubs from dummy and ruffed with the six of spades.

West could over-ruff with the eight of spades but then had to lead away from the queen-four. It didn't matter which card West led, of course, since declarer was bound to make the rest with dummy's five of spades and his own king.

Who would have dreamed that the five of spades would turn out to be so important a card?

Blackout Imposed

Saigon, Indochina, Feb. 3 (AP)—The French high command imposed a blackout today on information from northern Laos, where a division of the Communist-led Vietminh is moving on the royal capital of Luang Prabang. Last official reports before the clampdown said French forces screening the capital had pulled back along the Nam Hou river "according to plan" while French bombers and fighters pounded the advancing rebels.

To Share in Profits

Rochester, N. H., Feb. 3 (AP)—City workers, credited by Mayor John Shaw with helping pile up a $55,000 surplus in the municipal treasury, are going to get "profit sharing" pay hikes. The City Council voted last night to reward the 75 employes with $1 to $2 weekly raises. The mayor said the efficiency of city workers was a big factor in bringing about the surplus.

Gives 105th Pint

Philadelphia, Feb. 3 (AP)—Forty-year-old Ira J. Russell, who maintains he keeps in good health by giving blood, donated his 105th pint to the Red Cross blood bank yesterday. "I was on crutches suffering from rheumatism 20 years ago when a doctor suggested I give blood," Russell said. "A little while later, I threw the crutches away. Believe it or not, I've been in perfect health since." The 205-pound donor, who operates his own scrap business in nearby Salford, donates a pint of blood about every eight weeks.

Facilities Are Asked

Detroit, Feb. 3 (AP)—Municipal bus drivers want parking facilities enlarged around terminals. They want to drive to work, because they say the transportation system is too slow.

The regular monthly meeting of the J. N. Cordts Hose Company, 8, will be held Thursday at 8:30 p. m. at the firehouse. A full attendance of members is anticipated.

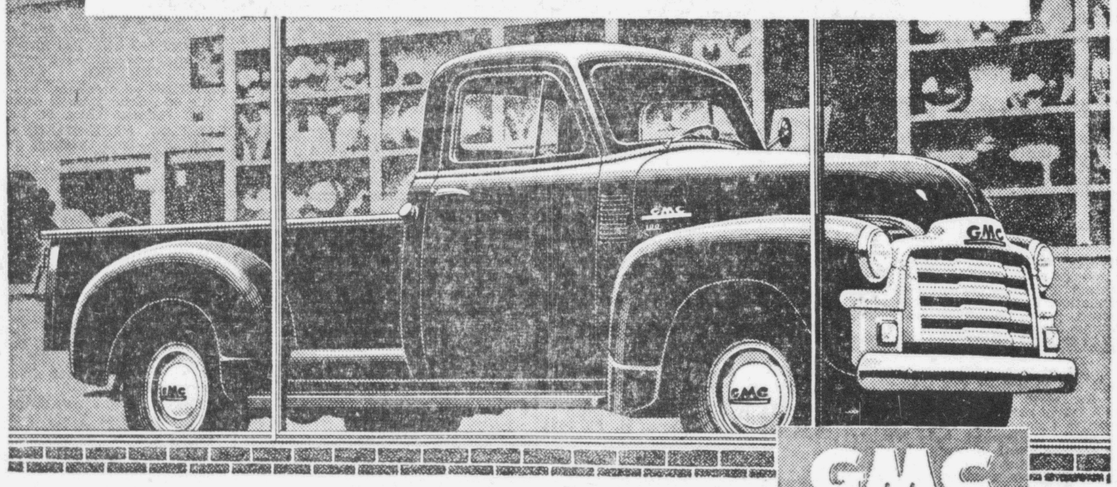
Presenting the mighty aristocrat of light-duty trucks—
the 1954 GMC



GMC HYDRA-MATIC TRUCKS

GMC's HUSKY NEW STANDARD PICKUP, powered with 125-horsepower engine—most powerful standard six in the field. A de luxe model with chrome grille and trim, two-tone exterior paint and cab rear corner windows is available at extra cost.

HERE is the most extraordinary light-duty truck ever built.

It has the smart styling of a fine passenger car to give its owners distinction and prestige.

A sweeping grille of modern design — a panoramic one-piece windshield—two-tone interiors with harmonizing upholstery—these are some of the luxury features that will make you proud to be seen in it.

But its practical side — its capacity for work — is even more exceptional.

It hasn't just more power than any truck in its class. It has a whopping 125-horsepower engine — more powerful than many trucks with a two-ton rating.

The Pickup—one of 19 models—has a box that holds up to 11 more cubic feet than last year's capacious model. Its tail gate is grain-tight—and sand-tight.

The dials on its handsome instrument panel are clustered. They can be read at one swift glance through the open top-half of a smart tri-spoke wheel.

And—a truck feature pioneered by GMC—it offers the driversaving, moneysaving advantages of Truck Hydra-Matic Drive*.

One final and surprising point. The price of the GMC, value for value, is unsurpassed anywhere on the truck market.

That's the story. The next move is yours. Come in and see "the world's most modern truck." And—make it soon. *Optional at extra cost gesting the addition, was referred by Alderman-at-Large Joseph Kelly to the state public works department.

Council Opens

Kelly suggested that a letter be sent with the council resolution which was adopted at the session. The addition to the arterial route plan was also among recommendations by the Chamber of Commerce. Twelfth Ward Alderman Robert C. Cullum expressed support of the proposal.

The planning board stressed it had decided on benefits of the plan only after "an intensive and unbiased study" of the state's urban area report for the city. The long planning board report was signed by L. J. MacAvery, planning board chairman, Augustus S. Brinnier, John A. McCullough, City Engineer Arthur F. Hallinan and James J. Abernethy, corporation counsel.

Noise and Danger

The letter from the advisory board of the First Baptist Church mentioned the possibility of increased noise and danger in the area of the church if the traffic spur starts near the intersection of Broadway and Albany avenue.

It said the church's concern was with "possible detrimental effect of the proposed arterial route spur connection upon the program and service of our church," because of the proposed route's proximity to the church.

Discussion of this, the letter said, "made it clear that the opposition of the advisory board was not opposition to any step which would be to the unquestioned benefit of the city. However, the board is concerned about what the proposal may mean in terms of parking facilities, access to the church and safety of the children, many of whom, must necessarily cross the proposed route to and from activities in the church."

Further Concern Told

Further concern was expressed it said, "as to the possible effect of increased traffic noises during the services of worship." It concluded: "The board urges that careful study be given the location of the proposed spur, with the above consideration in mind."

The planning board report noted that the city would save $83,000 in right-of-way costs through abandonment of the proposal to build a new ramp at the Rondout creek bridge, and it suggested that the traffic problem here could be solved by use of a system of "one-way streets and no left turns."

After outlining the plan which calls for a spur connecting an extension of Broadway and the thruway at Route 28, a traffic circle at Fair street extension, the ramp at the Rondout Creek bridge, a circle at Broadway, Albany avenue and East St. James street and the widening of sections of Wurts and McEntee streets and Broadway, the planning board listed its suggestions.

'Existing Streets' Used

The proposal, said the report, utilizes "existing streets of the city and introduces only ninetenths of a mile of new location over the lowlands as additional street. This section is established as a controlled access street which can be entered only at designated points. The points are established at Albany avenue and Fair street extension, each of which have its 'rotary' connection."

These connections, it noted, "are to the uptown business section providing excellent access and egress for local and area traffic in a highly congested business area. There will be no further additions or adjustments to the street system necessary, and the city is not obliged to bear any portion of this expense."

On the grade crossings the report said: "From the report as submitted, it appears that this route introduces two new grade crossings over the railroad at Fair street extension and at Broadway extension. Whether the detailed construction plans to be prepared will establish grade crossings at these points, and whether the Public Service Commission will approve the establishments of these grade crossings, the planning board strenuously objects to this phase of the proposal and will require grade separations or some safety measure."

On the proposal of the Rondout creek bridge the report noted that 60 per cent of traffic entering from the south passes out of the city over the East Chester street bypass, and opening of the thruway will relieve this flow.

Cross-Traffic Hazard

Then, it noted, the problem would be changed from one of adequacy to one of removing the hazard of cross traffic. It noted that this condition has caused "many fatalities and said the board has drafted a plan of control by one-way streets" which will reduce conflict of traffic movements from four to one and the exposures from eight to one, which will reduce the hazards accordingly."

This plan, the report said, will be set into operation experimentally and if it solves the problem, it "may obviate the necessity for revamping the Rondout creek bridge," and save the city $83,000.

The planning commission noted that its traffic studies and counts in the past two years "have indicated that the traffic pattern in Kingston is practically restricted to a northwest-southeast movement on Broadway, Clinton avenue, North Front street and Washington avenue, with a small northeast - northwest movement over Albany avenue, East Chester street and the Boulevard.

Jammed Through Section

"The northwest-southeast movement of 1,011 cars per hour has been jammed through the uptown business section which itself generates 333 cars per hour, totalling 1,344 cars an hour, struggling through streets having a capacity of approximately 600 cars an hour."

This condition, it said, "is caused by the fact that the state route markers have been placed on streets of the uptown business area and tourists follow the route markers.

This proposal will remove the arterial traffic from the congested uptown business area, increasing business and property values, as well as avoiding further city expenses in controlling traffic that should not and does not want to be in the area.

Will Relieve Flow

The proposed "rotary" at Albany avenue, Broadway and East St. James street, said the report, "will relieve the present point of greatest traffic flow and solve a major traffic difficulty. This commission has clocked 3,500 vehicles per hour at this point, or about three times as much traffic as any other point in Kingston."

The report suggested: "It is not likely that Kingston could afford to engage in the building of structures to handle traffic, and would be obliged to rely on 'palliatives,' such as one-way streets, no parking and no left turn regulations, which devices are strictly prohibitive and limited in their effectiveness and rarely correct, but usually spread the trouble. This construction will relieve the city from large expenditures in the future for traffic control at this point.

The planning board said it felt that the arterial route plan "offers a solution to Kingston's future traffic problem, and will save the city thousands of dollars in traffic control expenditures."

Citing effects of the plan on municipal government, the report noted that it "specifically fixes items that immediately effect the city financially, such as the loss of the assessed valuation of rights-of-way taken, which amount to $111,680. This would result in an increase of the tax rate of $0.189 per $1,000 valuation. It is conceivable that the thruway and arterial highway will increase the valuation of other lands as well as to add to valuation to present undeveloped land so that the apparent loss of valuation is largely rhetorical."

Half of Rights of Way

"It will be necessary for the city to pay one half the cost of rights-of-way" the report noted. "This has been estimated by the state to be $261,000. This amount is a definite expenditure and is the only expenditure to be made by the city and represents 9.4 per cent of the cost of the improvement."

The cost of the improvement to the taxpayer, it continued, "when spread over a ten-year bond issue, would amount to $0.9031 per $1,000 valuation. It would cost the average taxpayer $4 a year for ten years, or less than the cost of gasoline and oil consumed in traffic jams.

On the side of city budgetary reductions the report noted that the state will pay for maintenance of arterial route streets. These, it said are sizable sums, and as examples it said "the saving to the city in maintenance would be $6,711; the saving in snow removal cost to the city is estimated at $800 and considerable saving in the cost of traffic control."

Noting that the state lists 5.2 miles for reconstruction the report said the cost "would be conservatively $80,000 per mile or $416,000. If the city retained the cost of reconstruction of these streets and it became necessary to make the expenditure spread over a ten-year period, the tax rate would be raised $1.335 per $1,000 valuation. This potential increase in taxes will be permanently disposed of by the state's establishing the arterial route."

Controls Are Sought

The report recommended that the state provide "intersection design or traffic controls at several points" (such as Henry street and Broadway, etc.)

The effect on business would be beneficial, the report noted. Kingston, it said, is the contact point or center of influence for about 170,000 persons, and is the focal point for a large Catskill Mountain vacation area, providing for approximately 80,000 persons simultaneously during the summer who trade in Kingston.

"It is essential," said the report, "that these shoppers have easy access to the business houses of Kingston." It is likely, it noted, that the uptown business section will become enlarged and that in the area of St. James street, Broadway and Albany avenue, "in which a sizable business area has developed in the last few years, will become accelerated."

Effects Speculative

Effects of the thruway and arterial routes on industry, the board said, "is purely speculative and academic, but without these improvements the situation is purely negative and benefits no one." It added: "It is the belief of the planning commission that the development of Kingston industrially is one of the greatest benefits to be had for the establishment of the arterial routes, although the benefits cannot presently be calculated in dollars and cents."

The report also noted that "It is well to note that at the present time a considerable amount of unemployment is taking place locally, which is expected to be taken up by the new IBM plant when constructed. This project provides $2,777,500 worth of construction which will be paid out in wages and materials, which will find way to the business houses to tide the workers and business over the interim period of unemployment.

Would Establish Kingston

"Should the business and industrial expansion take place as envisioned," the report concluded, "as a result of the establishment of the arterial routes, the contingent increase in population, individual wealth and land values, would establish Kingston and its environs as a prosperous and progressive community with unlimited prospects for the future."

After an intensive and unbiased study of the report, it said, the commission "respectfully recommends to your Honorable Body (the Common Council) that the report be approved and that procedures be initiated to establish the arterial routes as outlined, and as unanimously approved by the City Planning Commission."

Mayor Stang's letter on the arterial route plan noted that it "has been the subject of much discussion among various groups in our city, and from letters received by me, and articles in your local press, it appears to meet with general favor. I believe it is definitely a step in the right direction. Kingston stands at the threshold of a new era. The proposed plan is in keeping with the progressive development of our city."

Council Opens

gesting the addition, was referred by Alderman-at-Large Joseph Kelly to the state public works department.

Kelly suggested that a letter be sent with the council resolution which was adopted at the session. The addition to the arterial route plan was also among recommendations by the Chamber of Commerce. Twelfth Ward Alderman Robert C. Cullum expressed support of the proposal.

The planning board stressed it had decided on benefits of the plan only after "an intensive and unbiased study" of the state's urban area report for the city. The long planning board report was signed by L. J. MacAvery, planning board chairman, Augustus S. Brinnier, John A. McCullough, City Engineer Arthur F. Hallinan and James J. Abernethy, corporation counsel.

Noise and Danger

The letter from the advisory board of the First Baptist Church mentioned the possibility of increased noise and danger in the area of the church if the traffic spur starts near the intersection of Broadway and Albany avenue.

It said the church's concern was with "possible detrimental effect of the proposed arterial route spur connection upon the program and service of our church," because of the proposed route's proximity to the church.

Discussion of this, the letter said, "made it clear that the opposition of the advisory board was not opposition to any step which would be to the unquestioned benefit of the city. However, the board is concerned about what the proposal may mean in terms of parking facilities, access to the church and safety of the children, many of whom, must necessarily cross the proposed route to and from activities in the church."

Further Concern Told

Further concern was expressed it said, "as to the possible effect of increased traffic noises during the services of worship." It concluded: "The board urges that careful study be given the location of the proposed spur, with the above consideration in mind."

The planning board report noted that the city would save $83,000 in right-of-way costs through abandonment of the proposal to build a new ramp at the Rondout creek bridge, and it suggested that the traffic problem here could be solved by use of a system of "one-way streets and no left turns."

After outlining the plan which calls for a spur connecting an extension of Broadway and the thruway at Route 28, a traffic circle at Fair street extension, the ramp at the Rondout Creek bridge, a circle at Broadway, Albany avenue and East St. James street and the widening of sections of Wurts and McEntee streets and Broadway, the planning board listed its suggestions.

'Existing Streets' Used

The proposal, said the report, utilizes "existing streets of the city and introduces only nine-tenths of a mile of new location over the lowlands as additional street. This section is established as a controlled access street which can be entered only at designated points. The points are established at Albany avenue and Fair street extension, each of which have its 'rotary' connection."

These connections, it noted, "are to the uptown business section providing excellent access and egress for local and area traffic in a highly congested business area. There will be no further additions or adjustments to the street system necessary, and the city is not obliged to bear any portion of this expense."

On the grade crossings the report said: "From the report as submitted, it appears that this route introduces two new grade crossings over the railroad at Fair street extension and at Broadway extension. Whether the detailed construction plans to be prepared will establish grade crossings at these points, and whether the Public Service Commission will approve the establishments of these grade crossings, the planning board strenuously objects to this phase of the proposal and will require grade separations or some safety measure."

On the proposal of the Rondout creek bridge the report noted that 60 per cent of traffic entering from the south passes out of the city over the East Chester street bypass, and opening of the thruway will relieve this flow.

Cross-Traffic Hazard

Then, it noted, the problem would be changed from one of adequacy to one of removing the hazard of cross traffic. It noted that this condition has caused "many fatalities and said the board has drafted a plan of control by one-way streets" which will reduce conflict of traffic movements from four to one and the exposures from eight to one, which will reduce the hazards accordingly."

This plan, the report said, will be set into operation experimentally and if it solves the problem, it "may obviate the necessity for revamping the Rondout creek bridge," and save the city $83,000.

The planning commission noted that its traffic studies and counts in the past two years "have indicated that the traffic pattern in Kingston is practically restricted to a northwest-southeast movement on Broadway, Clinton avenue, North Front street and Washington avenue, with a small northeast - northwest movement over Albany avenue, East Chester street and the Boulevard.

Jammed Through Section

"The northwest-southeast movement of 1,011 cars per hour has been jammed through the uptown business section which itself generates 333 cars per hour, totalling 1,344 cars an hour, struggling through streets having a capacity of approximately 600 cars an hour."

This condition, it said, "is caused by the fact that the state route markers have been placed on streets of the uptown business area and tourists follow the route markers.

This proposal will remove the arterial traffic from the congested uptown business area, increasing business and property values, as well as avoiding further city expenses in controlling traffic that should not and does not want to be in the area.

Will Relieve Flow

The proposed "rotary" at Albany avenue, Broadway and East St. James street, said the report, "will relieve the present point of greatest traffic flow and solve a major traffic difficulty. This commission has clocked 3,500 vehicles per hour at this point, or about three times as much traffic as any other point in Kingston."

The report suggested: "It is not likely that Kingston could afford to engage in the building of structures to handle traffic, and would be obliged to rely on 'palliatives,'" such as one-way streets, no parking and no left turn regulations, which devices are strictly prohibitive and limited in their effectiveness and rarely correct, but usually spread the trouble. This construction will relieve the city from large expenditures in the future for traffic control at this point.

The planning board said it felt that the arterial route plan "offers a solution to Kingston's future traffic problem, and will save the city thousands of dollars in traffic control expenditures."

Citing effects of the plan on municipal government, the report noted that it "specifically fixes items that immediately effect the city financially, such as the loss of the assessed valuation of rights-of-way taken, which amount to $111,680. This would result in an increase of the tax rate of $0.189 per $1,000 valuation. It is conceivable that the thruway and arterial highway will increase the valuation of other lands as well as to add to valuation to present undeveloped land so that the apparent loss of valuation is largely rhetorical."

Half of Rights of Way

"It will be necessary for the city to pay one half the cost of rights-of-way" the report noted. "This has been estimated by the state to be $261,000. This amount is a definite expenditure and is the only expenditure to be made by the city and represents 9.4 per cent of the cost of the improvement."

The cost of the improvement to the taxpayer, it continued, "when spread over a ten-year bond issue, would amount to $0.9031 per $1,000 valuation. It would cost the average taxpayer $4 a year for ten years, or less than the cost of gasoline and oil consumed in traffic jams.

On the side of city budgetary reductions the report noted that the state will pay for maintenance of arterial route streets. These, it said are sizable sums, and as examples it said "the saving to the city in maintenance would be $6,711; the saving in snow removal cost to the city is estimated at $800 and considerable saving in the cost of traffic control."

Noting that the state lists 5.2 miles for reconstruction the report said the cost "would be conservatively $80,000 per mile or $416,000. If the city retained the cost of reconstruction of these streets and it became necessary to make the expenditure spread over a ten-year period, the tax rate would be raised $1.335 per $1,000 valuation. This potential increase in taxes will be permanently disposed of by the state's establishing the arterial route."

Controls Are Sought

The report recommended that the state provide "intersection design or traffic controls at several points" (such as Henry street and Broadway, etc.)

The effect on business would be beneficial, the report noted. Kingston, it said, is the contact point or center of influence for about 170,000 persons, and is the focal point for a large Catskill Mountain vacation area, providing for approximately 80,000 persons simultaneously during the summer who trade in Kingston.

"It is essential," said the report, "that these shoppers have easy access to the business houses of Kingston." It is likely, it noted, that the uptown business section will become enlarged and that in the area of St. James street, Broadway and Albany avenue, "in which a sizable business area has developed in the last few years, will become accelerated."

Effects Speculative

Effects of the thruway and arterial routes on industry, the board said, "is purely speculative and academic, but without these improvements the situation is purely negative and benefits no one." It added: "It is the belief of the planning commission that the development of Kingston industrially is one of the greatest benefits to be had for the establishment of the arterial routes, although the benefits cannot presently be calculated in dollars and cents."

The report also noted that "It is well to note that at the present time a considerable amount of unemployment is taking place locally, which is expected to be taken up by the new IBM plant when constructed. This project provides $2,777,500 worth of construction which will be paid out in wages and materials, which will find way to the business houses to tide the workers and business over the interim period of unemployment.

Would Establish Kingston

"Should the business and industrial expansion take place as envisioned," the report concluded, "as a result of the establishment of the arterial routes, the contingent increase in population, individual wealth and land values, would establish Kingston and its environs as a prosperous and progressive community with unlimited prospects for the future."

After an intensive and unbiased study of the report, it said, the commission "respectfully recommends to your Honorable Body (the Common Council) that the report be approved and that procedures be initiated to establish the arterial routes as outlined, and as unanimously approved by the City Planning Commission."

Mayor Stang's letter on the arterial route plan noted that it "has been the subject of much discussion among various groups in our city, and from letters received by me, and articles in your local press, it appears to meet with general favor. I believe it is definitely a step in the right direction. Kingston stands at the threshold of a new era. The proposed plan is in keeping with the progressive development of our city."

Surgical reconstruction to enable him to walk upright is planned after the massage treatments build up his physical strength.

At first there was some speculation the boy might have been reared by jackals. But Dr. Sharma said jackals often devour their young, while she-wolves are known to have strong maternal instincts.

His verdict that Ramu is a "wolf boy" has been drawing a stream of curious to the hospital. One published report said 700 rupees ($147) had been collected in admission fees.

Dr. Sharma said the boy's jungle childhood is evident from a double set of upper jaw incisors, used to gnaw bones, from claw-like hands with ingrowing nails, and pressure scars on his knees from walking on all fours.

"His knees have developed bursitis," Dr. Sharma told newsmen. "The soles of his feet show he never walked. Numerous scars are visible all over his body."

A Lucknow University psychology professor, Kali Prasad, is awaiting Dr. Sharma's call to initiate behavior studies when the massages and muscle exercises are under way.

Use of the massage treatment stems from India's sketchy history of perhaps 40 children labeled as reared by animals. The "wolf girls of Midnapore," Kamala and Amala, were reported to have attained the full use of their legs through massage. A New Delhi newspaper, The Statesman, related that those girls were rescued from a wolf's den in 1942 by an Indian Christian, the Rev. J. A. L. Singh, and sheltered at his orphanage.

Lucknow legends tell not only of wolf boys but also of children reared by leopards and bears in the jungles southeast of that city.

American Says

January brought orders for Rastovorov to return home.

He said Rastovorov knew he was to be sent home and decided to ask the Americans for asylum.

The source also said two other Russian agents in Tokyo — both friends of Rastovorov—wanted to give themselves over to the Americans, but are being sent home guarded by five other Russians.

He said these are the seven men the Russian mission said would return shortly to the Soviet Union.

The American source said Rastovorov is believed to be a lieutenant colonel in the MVD (secret police). Such a rank would make him a key figure in a spy ring here.

Winning Rastovorov away from the Soviets could be one of the greatest American army intelligence exploits since the end of World War 2.

A man of his rank would probably be able to name every important Communist spy in Japan and also provide clues for the missing leaders of the Japanese Communist Party, who went underground about four years ago.

Military sources said Rastovorov is 35 years old—born one year after the Russian revolution—and is 5 feet 10. He weighs 173 pounds, and has typical Slav blonde hair and blue-gray eyes.

He was popular at the swank Tokyo Tennis Club, frequented by influential American and Japanese figures.

The Rastovorov case has been compared to the similar switch of Igor Gouzenko, Soviet embassy code clerk at Ottawa, Canada, who tipped Canadian and American authorities on a Red atom spy ring.

Haymes and Rita Can Leave Suite

New York, Feb. 3 (AP)—Singer Dick Haymes and his actress wife Rita Hayworth had a clear path from their hotel suite today. For the first time in 24 hours they were not besieged by sheriff's deputies carrying a civil arrest order for Haymes.

The deputies arrived at the Hotel Madison suite Monday night at 8 p. m. they left about the same time last night, a compromise having been reached between council for Haymes and his former wife, actress Joanne Dru, who obtained the arrest order.

Miss Dru, now the wife of actor John Ireland, claims Haymes owes her $33,323. In Hollywood last night, a spokesman quoted her as saying:

"I took action against Dick Haymes very reluctantly, only after he had repeatedly failed to live up to promises to help support his (three) children (by her) and also to repay thousands of dollars in tax money that I was compelled to pay to the government on income he had earned during our marriage."

Bartley Crum, attorney for Haymes and Miss Hayworth, told newsmen the terms of the understanding "will remain private at this time."

Miss Hayworth beamed at the agreement.

Pay Roll Is Missing

Camp Kilmer, N. J., Feb. 3 (AP)—A GI pay roll of $2,880 was reported missing at Camp Kilmer today. The money was taken from a small field safe which was bolted to the wall, a post public information offices spokesman said. The safe had been locked Monday night. The theft was discovered when the monthly pay roll was to be distributed to Company "A" yesterday afternoon. The safe showed no signs of tampering.

His Overcoat Found

Endicott, Feb. 3 (AP)—Walter Keneller walked into police headquarters and reported that someone had taken his overcoat while he was in a diner. Keneller got his coat back in jig time. Police located the man who had taken it through a traffic ticket found in the coat Keneller picked up in the exchange.

Molotov Opens

ing anything more than a bit of home front propaganda behind the Iron Curtain.

Confer at Length

Before today's session the western foreign ministers conferred at length.

Secretary of State Dulles, France's Georges Bidault and British Foreign Secretary Eden discussed the crisis at Eden's headquarters and also pieced together their strategy for the afternoon session of the big four in the Russian embassy.

Ahead of them lay the certainty that Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov would drop in one more unacceptable thesis on German unification. Molotov promised he would have a detailed plan for "free elections." By the very fact that he has one, he served notice he has little use for the western plan.

The western plan calls for free and secret voting first. Moscow believes in merging the east and west German governments into a provisional regime that would perpetuate its German Communist vassals.

Might Produce Lessening

French sources reported that the western delegates still figured the conference might possibly produce some lessening of tension in Germany by easing trade and frontier problems, and that a chance exists for negotiation on Korea and Indochina in some form.

But for German unity, the outlook was bleak unless Molotov did the unexpected.

Austrian independence hadn't even been touched yet, so there was no way of knowing if the Kremlin had a veto ready or not for the long-delayed Austrian treaty.

Molotov's repeated attack on the western alliance, his blasts at the European Defense Community (EDC), and his charges that the west has aggressive designs in its plans for future Germany have all compelled the western three to present a solid front at all times.

Schifano Case Is

sion of the case, returned a manslaughter indictment. Schifano and Mrs. Nusca, both wounded, were found by State Police in her apartment west of Highland. Both were removed to a Poughkeepsie hospital where Mrs. Nusca died from various wounds on June 23, 1952, two days after being admitted. Schifano recovered and was charged with her death. Near the two was found a hatchet and a knife, when state police arrived on the scene.

In the early days charcoal was used for the smelting of iron and serious damage to many forests resulted by heavy cutting to produce it.

The answers to everyday insurance problems*
By HERMAN J. EATON

QUESTION: Which is the most important insurance to carry on a car—collision or liability?

ANSWER: Unquestionably it is much more important to carry liabilitay insurance not only to protect you against any claims made against you for negligence in operating the auto, but also to avoid becoming involved with the Financial Responsibility Law. Collision coverage pays only loss or damage to your own car.

* If you'll address your own insurance questions to this office we'll try to give you the correct answers and there will be NO CHARGE or OBLIGATION OF ANY KIND.

launched. A search has revealed firearms, sharp weapons, tracts and seditious proclamations. Accordingly, "like the Nurnberg tribunal of Justice Robert Jackson of the U. S. Supreme Court and the synthetic Brigadier General Telford Taylor, the legislature at its imminent session would "launch constitutional proceedings to permit competent authority to proceed against the authors of the crimes—men who are protected by immunity—in accordance with the fundamental charter."

Another communique said that in spite of the Constitutional provisions "decreed" by the government, other members of the Legislature had continued to incite workers and students to strike and cause disaffection among the armed forces. Accordingly the government had ordered the judge d'instruction to take action against them.

In spontaneous indignation against such perfidy, all industry in Port-au-Prince closed down next morning and the businessmen and employes converged on the palace lawn Girls who sort coffee beans with their fingers sang a song of homage to Magloire, and the president came down from his balcony and told the multitude that "I am obliged once more to wear my iron pants to suppress some vagabonds."

Next day again, "the palace lawn was a seething mass of government employes, political and social groups reaffirming loyalty to President Magloire."

The Sun reported that "from the palace steps beside a huge oil painting of himself in a general's uniform," the president "thanked the manifesters for their collaboration."

The answers to everyday insurance problems*
By HERMAN J. EATON

QUESTION: Which is the most important insurance to carry on a car—collision or liability?
ANSWER: Unquestionably it is much more important to carry liabilitay insurance not only to protect you against any claims made against you for negligence in operating the auto, but also to avoid becoming involved with the Financial Responsibility Law. Collision coverage pays only loss or damage to your own car.
* If you'll address your own insurance questions to this office we'll try to give you the correct answers and there will be NO CHARGE or OBLIGATION OF ANY KIND.
